MRS. MARTHA HAUSNER

Bride Losing Hope For Life of Flier Lost on Sea Hop

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Buoyant hope turned to fear in the courageous heart of Martha Hausner today, when for the first time in endless hours of vain waiting for news of her flier husband, she voiced her despair of his safety in his attempted flight across the Atlantic which he started last Friday.

Her confidence shaken, facing an abyss of uncertainty, the young wife clung to a fragment of hope, prayed for what she knew would be only a miracle—a safe landing. And as she prayed, she wept.

"I'm afraid. I'm afraid of what might have happened to Stanley's plane in that bad weather—I'm worried."

The tears that she held back so bravely during all the long hours of waiting, the tears that she stunchly refused to shed when she kissed her husband goodbye, coursed unheeded down her cheeks as she spoke.

By the most optimistic allowances the fuel supply Hausner carried for his New York to Warsaw flight would have lasted no longer than Sunday noon. The bare possibilities that Hausner may have landed and been unable to communicate word of his safety or that he may have fallen into the sea and been picked up by a vessel not equipped with wireless were the only basis for hope of his being alive.

Congressional Leaders for Resubmission Plank; Adoption Held Likely

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Republican congressional leaders were declared today by Senator Watson to be in virtual agreement upon a prohibition plank calling for "prompt action by Congress for resubmission of prohibition to state conventions."

The Indianian, who leads his party strategy in the Senate, said yesterday's meeting of Republican legislators here and subsequent conversations had brought about a "unity of view" on a resubmission plank.

As a result of this meeting by the congressional leaders on the controversial point, its adoption by the national convention is regarded as certain in Republican quarters at the capitol.

The tentative platform declaration—as backed by these men—calls for enforcement and condemns the saloon. It's submission provisions reads:

"We favor prompt action by the Congress to bring about the resubmission of the Eighteenth amendment to the people of the several states, acting through non-partisan conventions called for that sole purpose in accordance with Article Rive to determine whether that amendment shall be retained, modified or repealed."

QUIZ HEARS CHARGES OF WASTE

Cost of Building 2 Pools Increased by Thousands, Audit Witness Charges

Mistakes and waste increased the cost of building two pools to beautify South Park by many thousands of dollars, a former inspector of water lines told the county government investigators today as the inquiry was resumed.

The witness said he had been discharged from the county employ last November and was told by James Routley and William H. Ziefel, formerly in the County Commissioners' office:

"You were not right at the last election."

Previously he had been told by E. V. Babcock, former County Commissioner, that politics didn't enter into the payroll, the witness stated.

EXPERT'S 'BLUNDERS'

A reputed expert brought to Pittsburgh to build the pools in South Park made so many mistakes, the witness related, that in his opinion the cost of constructing one pool, which, he said, could have been built for $2,500, was around $40,000 or $50,000. Finally the so-called expert was discharged, another man hired and the work was completed satisfactorily, the witness said.

Faulty specifications were blamed by Paul B. Riis, county director of parks, for the necessity of relaying water lines, the witness asserted. When the latter called Riis' attention to cast iron joints in the water lines and

LINE WITHHOLDS TRAINS AS HUNDREDS WAIT TO BOARD CARS

Undismayed by the plight of more than 500 of their comrades, stranded in Connellsville when the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad temporarily discontinued freight service there to rid its train of "deadhead" riders, hundreds after hundreds of ex-service men continued their trek through the Pittsburgh district today.

Where 14 and 15 years ago these same men marched their way to the battlefields of France, they now moved with a different objective—Washington—where they will present their demands to Congress for an immediate payment of the service bonuses.

They moved through Pittsburgh in the same orderly fashion that has characterized the trek throughout the nation.

They came by automobile, by freight train and by foot, all with a single goal.

At Connellsville last night and early today, between 500 and 600 quietly left freight trains and formed an encampment on the banks of the Youghiogheny River when railroad police informed them the trains were going no farther.

The delegation was composed largely of veterans from McKeesport, Duquesne, Pittsburgh, Akron, O., and Detroit.

TRAIN SERVICE HALTS

Division Superintendent John D. Beltz, in charge of the B. & O. at Connellsville, announced that no freight trains would leave there until the "marchers" had moved on.

Some responded by starting ahead on foot, others risked their lives and hopped fast passenger and mail trains to "carry on" to Washington.

By midafternoon, Connellsville officials estimated the number of men at the Youghiogheny camp had dwindled to approximately 400.

City police said the camp was outside Connellsville's limits and they would take no action to make the campers move.

Railroad and city officials denied they had asked for outside police aid, but Sheriff Harry S. Hackney, of Fayette County, and Capt. Albert Carlson, of the state police barracks at Greensburg, both said they had received calls for men.

POLICE NOT TO INTERFERE

Carlson, before leaving to inspect the camp, said he would not interfere as long as the "marchers" did not resort to violence. Sheriff Hackney took the same attitude.

Carlson said:

"We plan no interference as long as the men behave themselves and our reports show

Rain and Food Crisis Fails to Halt Veterans

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Rain and slim army rations failed today to dim the fire of the "Bonus Expeditionary Force," as it leaders continued their drive for immediate cash payment of service certificates.

So energetic was the lobbying by increased numbers in the House and Senate office buildings that extra police were stationed at strategic points.

Metropolitan police, meanwhile, estimated they had food enough to last through tomorrow. The total here now is more than 2,500.

A House vote on the $2,000,000,000 cash payment issue is scheduled for next Monday.

PARADE PLANNED

A parade from the White House to the Capitol is planned by the bonus marchers for tomorrow night. They have definitely refused to go home, even though food supplies are low.

Walter W. Waters, of Portland, Ore., instigator of the veteran march movement, formally resigned as leader today in a neatly penciled note to P. D. Glassford, leaving Supt. of Police George Alman, of Portland, Ore., as commander, and George Kleinholtz, also of Portland, Ore., as vice commander-in-chief. Police funds

Midsummer Heat Still Grips City

Midsummer heat continued today, with little prospect of relief. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said the temperature would approximate yesterday's mark of 88. Crops and fruit trees, lawns and gardens are suffering from the draught, he reported. Scattered showers occurred last night in the Allegheny and Monongahela valleys but none near Pittsburgh.

FOUR PAROLED IN VOTE CASE

Three city policemen, Julius Bounetti, Peter Cappola and George Baquet, a former Justice of the Peace, all of the Thirty-first Ward, pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy, subornation of perjury and accessory to unlawful registration before Judge Elder W. Marshall in Criminal Court today.

All were paroled for two years, Bounetti and Cappola fined $200 each and Baquet $300. They admitted giving whisky to 13 Negro laborers and instructing them to swear they had lost their tax receipts, to enable them to vote at the last September primaries. None actually voted, it was disclosed.

Anthony Siano and Anthony Sevilio, both of 1554 Center avenue, were freed by directed verdict of charges of conspiracy to procure false registration of Second Ward residents after being placed on trial before Visiting Judge Thomas F. Bailey today.

Patrolmen Save Baby With Oxygen

Speedy arrival of South Side Patrolmen Richard Challis and Tom Fitzgerald with an oxygen tank today saved the life of 2-months-old Zorka Torobovich, ill of pneumonia in her home at 3226 Harcum way, Dr. R. P. Saling reported. Another child, George Mason, 6, of 1210 Bingham street, suffering from penumonia, was being given oxygen by the police for the fifieth consecutive day today.

JOB RIOTERS REPULSED

DETROIT, June 6.—(AP.)—A crowd of about 3,000 men, attempting an unemployment demonstration at the gates of the Mack avenue plant of the Briggs Manufacturing Company, were driven back at 11:30 a. m. today after a brief struggle with 50 policemen armed with tear gas bombs and riot clubs.

Four policemen were slightly injured by bricks and stones thrown by the demonstrators. Several of the demonstrators were knocked down.

The demonstration, called by John Schmies, one-time Communist candidate for mayor of Detroit, began when almost 3,000 gathered, demanding unemployment relief, a 10 per cent increase in wages of Briggs workers and slowing down of the production line.

Police were called when the mob attempted to rush the gates of the plant. Four men were arrested.

Plot to Bomb Duce Thwarted; Suspect Seized

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL

ROME, June 6.—(INS.)—Unusually heavy guards were maintained over King Victor Emanuel and Premier Benito Mussolini today as a result of the uncovering of a plot to slay Mussilini last Saturday.

The plot was discovered with the arrest of Angelo Sbardellotto, 25-year-old Italian anarchist labor agitator previously well known to police, who confessed having planned to assasinate Il Duce.

When seized Sbardellotto carried two deftly-made and highly explosive bombs and a revolver. He had planned to hurl the bombs at the Premier as his car entered the grounds of the Palazzo Venezia, and then commit suicide with the revolver.

The would-be assassin was arrested as he loitered about the palace entrance a short while before Mussolini was scheduled to pass on his daily visit to his offices.

Because of the skill with which the bombs were made, police suspected Sbardellotto had accomplices, although he declared he had none. The bombs were of foreign manufacture.

NEELY FACING RECEIPT QUIZ

Howard Neely, chairman of the Fourth Ward, Alderman-Police Magistrate-Ward Chairman Thomas Jones and other political figures will be brought before the grand jury in its tax receipt investigation, when it resumes June 20, it was announced today by District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Neely, fired from a state job by Gov. Pinchot recently, was accused of buying almost 4,000 tax receipts. He is one of Senator J. J. Coyne's lieutenants. Neely was subpenaed last November, but the term expired before he was called.

While work on the classification of tax receipts has been going on, the County Commissioners having set up $5,000 for investigation, subpenas have been issued and service began today.

QUAKE IN WEST KILLS WOMAN

EUREKA, Cal., June 6.—(AP.)—One woman was killed and three other persons injured in a severe earthquake which shook Northern California and Southern Oregon early today.

Mrs. Walter McCutcheon, of Eureka, was fatally injured when the chimney of her home toppled over and crashed through the roof upon the family. Mrs. McCutcheon suffered a broken leg and their daughter Louise, 3, was slightly injured. The other known victim was a bakery employe whose wrists were broken when the temblor jarred two bread trays together.

The quake was reported "very strong" in Klamath Falls, Ore., 155 miles northeast of Eureka, and was felt in San Francisco, 285 miles to the south. Redding, 85 miles east of Eureka, reported it "severe."

A number of shacks in Arcata, a village seven miles from Eureka, were razed. Four distinct shocks were felt here, all coming in rapid succession at about 12:40 a. m.

Cleric Battles 3 Bandits, Shoots Father-in-Law

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP.)—Dr. Herman T. Reinecke, of New York, secretary of the Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church, fought a pistol battle today with three bandits who robbed his father-in-law's drug store of $300.

The father-in-law, David Siebert, 76, was shot in the leg by a stray bullet from Dr. Reinecke's pistol.

Wholesale Buying Planned In County Food Relief

Complete re-organization of the County Poor Board's food relief distribution to be patterned after the system in Toledo, O., was announced today by Maj. J. Clyde Miller, member of the board.

Maj. Miller had just returned from Toledo where he and E. S. Claney, director of relief for the Allegheny County Emergency Association, investigated the system. Claney is preparing a report on the Toledo plan, which, he says, may be extended to the city as well as the county.

The Toledo system involves buying food in wholesale quantities and distributing from a central warehouse instead of purchasing from retail grocers.

The present monthly expenditure for th. relief in the city and county is $600,000. Claney said 20 per cent might be saved by adopting the Toledo plan.

The scheme involves packing baskets for each family separately, with food budgeted according to callories.

ARMY AND NAVY HELD BACKING NEW DRIVE

U. S. Investments Periled by Change in Government: Air Raids Threatened

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 6.—(AP.)—A counter-revolution directed against the Socialist regime which set itself up here on Saturday has broken out in Southern Chile.

It was understood that the Army and Navy support the movement. From the south this morning came reports that army and navy garrisons at Concepcion and Talcahuano had joined the counter-revolutionary forces.

THREATENS AIR RAID

Gen. Pedro Ibanez, minister of the interior in the new government, said he had expected some such incident, but did not believe the counter-revolution would be serious. If necessary, he said, he would send planes down to bombard the rebels.

Juan Esteban Montero, ousted by the Socialist Junta last night at 8 o'clock, was reported to be somewhere along the coast trying to reach the southern force. It also was reported that former President Ibanez, who has been living in Argentina, had crossed the border into Chile by air, landing at his ranch near Talca.

This morning university students declared a strike in protest against the Junta government, but the city was quiet.

INVESTMENTS PERILED

Establishment of the new Socialist regime creates no immediate danger for American investments here, except those tied up in the $375,000,000 Cosach Nitrate combine, it was said today in an authoritative quarter.

The understanding on both sides seemed to be that the Cosach holdings would be nationalized immediately. The combine is controlled by American interests. For the time being, however, there will be no move to confiscate other American properties whose paper value approximates $1,000,000,000.

Socialistic Revolt Predicted for Peru

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Alejandro Rey de Zevallos, New York representative of the Peruvian Apra movement, predicted today that a revolution similar to that which overthrew the government of President Montero, of Chile, Saturday, would occur in Peru within 60 days.

The Apra party, he said, would lead the revolt against President Sanchez Cerro and would count on aid from the rank and file of the Army and Navy.

He claimed the party has thousands of followers in Peru, Mexico, Argentina, Uruguay and Bolivia, and that its objects are similar to the Socialistic principles of the new government in Chile. It seeks to unite 20 Latin American nations in an economic federation.

NEEDED RELIEF By Quin Hall

TWO FIREMEN HURT IN BLAST

Two firemen were injured, a family including several children were shaken in their beds and windows shattered for a radius of several blocks by explosions followed by fire which destroyed two dwellings and damaged a third in Stowe Township and Swissvale early today.

Stowe Township Fireman Dardie DeAngelis, 25, suffered burns of the head and face, and Fireman John Sentz, 30, was overcome by smoke while fighting a blaze which followed a blast in a two-story frame dwelling occupied by Mrs. Elizabeth Dansee at 93 Highland avenue, Norwood Heights, Stowe Township.

The blast of undetermined cause ripped a hole in the side of the building and blew a portion of the wall into the adjoining home of John May, firemen said.

The May family, including several children, were jarred from their beds by the force of the blast, according to Capt. Herbert Porter of the Stowe Township fire department, who estimated damage to the Dansee home at $5,000 and $2,000 to the May home. The Dansee family was absent.

Shortly after the Stowe Township blast, Swissvale residents were aroused from their beds by an explosion and fire which destroyed the three-story brick residence of Bruce Cracken, in Collingwood avenue.

The blast, believed to have been caused by gas, occurred on the first floor. Damage was estimated at $6,000 by Assistant Fire Chief M. T. Hatzer. The family was absent.

Bonus March Plans Given Up in Detroit

DETROIT, June 6.—(INS.)—Plans to lead a large body of Michigan veterans to Washington to demand payment of the soldier bonus were abandoned today.

AUTHOR LEAPS TO DEATH

MIAMI, Fla., June 6.—(AP.)—Henry W. Fisher, 77, author of numerous books several of which purported to reveal the private lives of European monarchs, fell to his death from a ninth-floor window of a hotel here today and notes he left told of his intention to commit suicide.

An elevator operator saw him climb to the window ledge and tried to restrain him, but the author, who had been in ill health for several years, fought him off.

Two of his best-known works are "Private Lives of the Kaiser and His Consort" and "Secret History of the Court of Berlin."

DRY FOES HINT THIRD PARTY

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP.)—Raymond Pitcairn, of Philadelphia, vice chairman of the Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition, indicated today the committee might launch a third party here should the G. O. P. convention fail to adopt a repeal plank.

Pitcairn advised Seymour Wheeler, local vice chairman, that an anti-dry rally called by the committee for June 13 would be adjourned sine die to give the G. O. P. liberals attending it an opportunity to observe what action the national Republican convention starting June 14 will take on prohibition, Pitcairn declared.

"The mass meeting was not organized with the idea of a third party in mind, but should the platform builders pussyfoot on the prohibition issue the committee can reconvene for such action as they deem necessary to return this country to prosperity."

The Committee against National Prohibition is composed of former contributors to the party campaign funds who claim to have donated $4,500,000 to the campaign of 1928.

G. O. P. LEADERS DISAGREE OVER ADJOURNMENT

Senate Prepares to Pass Tax Bill; Howell Balks at Change in Power Levy

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP.)—Faced with a mass of vital legislation, Congress today entered the final week before the national political conventions with a prediction by Senator Watson, the Republican leader, that it could not complete its work before July 1.

This opinion was challenged, however, by Chairman Fess, of the Republican National Committee. He said he believed it would be possible for Congress to get through by June 14—the day the Republican convention opens in Chicago. Both Senators gave their views to newspapermen.

In a drive to finish up as soon as possible, the Senate plotted to finish legislative action on the billion-dollar tax bill today and speed it to President Hoover for his signature. He is expected to sign it immediately.

The bill's conference report was taken up by the Senate with prospects for completion of the legislation before nightfall.

Senator Howell (Rep.), of Nebraska, immediately filed a point of order against the conference report, but it was overruled by Vice President Curtis.

Howell contended the conferees exceeded their authority in changing the proposed tax on electricity from power companies to consumers and imposing the tax on public power companies. The Senate bill carried a tax of 3 per cent on the gross receipts of private power companies.

U. S. Deficit Grows To $2,707,732,673

The Treasury reported that receipts from all sources amounted to $1,780,679,896, while the expenditures were $4,488,412,569. The receipts were approximately $900,000,000 less than for the same period of the previous fiscal year, while the expenditures were $700,000,000 more than was spent in the same number of days of the 1931 year.

WALKER QUIZ REPORT READY

NEW YORK, June 6.—(INS.)—Samuel Seabury, counsel of the Hofstadter Legislative Committee, drafted his analysis today of the evidence against Mayor James J. Walker which, with a transcript of the committee hearings, probably will be sent to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tomorrow.

It was believed a group of civic organizations, including the City Club and Society for the Prevention of Crime, would place formal charges against the Mayor before the Governor and demand his removal.

Seabury, who was back from his trip to Washington, Pa., where he spoke at the commencement exercises of Washington and Jefferson College and received an honorary degree, refused to comment on any phase of the Walker case.

State Senator John A. Hastings, in a letter to District Attorney Crain asked that Seabury be indicted, charging the counsel received a reduced fare rate when he sailed for Bermuda last March and therefore violated a constitutional act forbidding public officials to accept such reductions.

'Wet Plank Unfair,' Bishop Cannon Says

SIOUX FALLS, Ia., June 6.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., says adoption of a "wet" plank by either the Republican or Democratic national convention would be "unfair."

WASTE CHARGED IN COUNTY

the resultant leakage, Riis, he said, told him:

"Well, what can we do about it? That's what the specifications call for."

PRICE HIGH

When he looked over catalogs for extra valves which he recommended for the South Park water system, he said a stenographer in the office at South Park informed him a certain company would get the county business, although its price was high, because a county official was a big stockholder in the company.

A farmer who sold his land to the county for North Park and was one of the first custodians of the park asserted that a gas well which he said was supplying gas to the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, the county, five houses and one mill had been permitted through neglect to fill up with water.

As a result, the witness said, the meter in the park had to be changed, so instead of selling gas to the Manufacturers Company the county had to buy it.

EXTRA PAY

The witness related that he had been requested by Director Riis to make entries in the time books which would give extra pay to several painters, electricians and carpenters. The witness said he replied:

"I will give the men only what they work for."

Another man was later placed in charge of the books, he said.

Two score tractors for North Park were leased at $17.50 a week each, which proved more expensive than if they had been bought outright on bids, the former custodian declared.

Other instances of alleged waste described by the witness were allowing good hay to rot while straw was bought for bedding, 500 bushels of oats destroyed by mice and rats; tearing down the houses and barns when nearby farmers offered to buy the building and dismantle them.

Assistant District Attorney Earl T. Adair continued to sit at the hearing today, forecasting probable prosecutions as a result of the probe. Assistant County Solicitor C. B. Mehard questioned witnesses in place of Assistant Solicitor Ralph H. Frank.

Samples of the water of all North and South Park springs and wells will be taken tomorrow for analysis under direction of the State Health Board. The step follows testimony that water in the park proved injurious to buffalos and livestock.

GARNER RELIEF PLAN NEARING FIRST TEST

House to Get Measure With Debate Limited to Three Hours; G. O. P. to Fight

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—The struggle between the administration and the Democrats over relief legislation—one of the prime controversies to be settled before adjournment—will burst forth in the House tomorrow over the $2,000,000,000 measure sponsored by Speaker Garner.

By an 8 to 4 vote, the Rules Committee agreed today for the bill to be brought up under drastic procedure with debate limited to three hours. The Democrats are pledged to support it.

Meanwhile, the Ways and Means Committee, approving the measure for the second time due to technical changes, sliced $39,050,000 from the total allocated to public buildings.

LOWERED COSTS

Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, said the changes were "made because of the decreased building costs."

The vote by the Rules Committee was strictly along party lines. No amendments or points of order can be presented and only one motion to send the bill back to the Ways and Means Committee is to be allowed.

Representative Bankhead (Dem.), of Alabama, in presenting the rule, said:

"Frankly it is drastic, but the Democratic caucus has instructed me to submit this and as long as we have the responsibility for this legislation, we are going to assume it."

SNELL PLANS FIGHT

Meanwhile, Representative Snell, the Republican leader, said his colleagues would meet in closed conference late today to make plans to defeat the Garner program and substitute that proposed by President Hoover.

The relief problem also will be tackled again tomorrow by the Senate Banking Committee. The committee will have before it both the Senate Democratic relief bill and the measure embodying the administration's plan introduced by Senator Barbour (Rep.), of New Jersey, on behalf of Secretary Mills.

HOHENZOLLERN RETURN SEEN

LONDON, June 6.—(AP.)—Lord Rothermere, British publisher, said in the Daily Mail today that there is no safer political prophecy than that the Hohenzollerns again would occupy the throne of Germany within 18 months.

His statement was telephoned to the Mail, one of his newspapers, from Berlin, where the publisher was visiting.

He expressed a belief that the monarchy would be peacefully restored and heartily welcomed by the German people. He said it would galvanize the nation's life and stimulate economic recovery, while he saw no reason why it might complicate relations between France and Germany.

BERLIN, June 6.—(AP.)—A government spokesman today issued a denial of a report sponsored by influential Nationalists that President von Hindenburg would retire in the fall to make way for a regency under former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm.

'Resentment' Denied In Trial of Rector

LONDON, June 6.—(INS.)—On the heels of a suggestion that action had been brought against him as a result of "resentment," the trial of the Rev. Harold Francis Davidson on charges of involving a score of girls ended in Consistory Court today. Decision will be handed down July 8.

Roland Oliver, prosecuting attorney, vehemently denied that it was "resentment" which led Barbara Harrison, pretty 19-year-old teashop waitress, to prefer the charge.

Californian Takes Bride Picked by Cheers of 5,000

HOLLISTER, Cal., June 6.—(AP.)—Jim Dale didn't seek a John Alden to aid him in winning a bride—he asked 5,000 persons who he should wed.

And the 5,000 selected Mrs. Emma Johnson, 52-year-old San Jose widow, by cheering louder for her than they did for six other candidates at an Elks' picnic Sunday. Dale, 58-year-old Petaluma poultryman, had chosen the event as suitable for his wedding day.

Seven candidates were seated on a platform. Dale agreed to marry the one selected by the 5,000 persons at the picnic.

Over each prospective bride in turn, a judge placed his hand. For each one the crowd cheered.

The judge decided the cheer which greeted his raised hand over the head of Mrs. Johnson was the loudest of all.

There was no delay, though California's law requires three days' notice of intent to marry. Dale had named all seven women in his application for a license.

E. A. Pearce, justice of the peace, was on hand to perform the ceremony. Gov. James Rolph, Jr., arrived by airplane to be best man. He was the first to kiss the bride.

Rich 'Hotel Hermit,' 86, Fights to Keep Fortune

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—A $2,000,000 estate and an aged woman recluse, who never leaves her hotel room, will figure in a motion to be heard tomorrow in Supreme Court.

The recluse is Mrs. Theresa Coulson, 86, who is said to have lived in one hotel for 15 years without ever leaving her room and then moved to another one two years ago, which she has not left since. Clad in a kimona, she pores over the contents of old trunks and relics of Oregon pioneer days.

The motion will be on behalf of Mrs. Coulson's niece, Mrs. Hay Hueston Penniman, now in California, asking that the aged woman be declared incompetent.

The niece was herself freed from an insane asylum recently after 18 years there and a bitter fight to obtain her release and prove she never should have been committed.

Mrs. Coulson's father was Thomas E. Holmes, founder of Portland. Her husband was killed by Indians.

BONUS VETS' FORCE HALT IN B. & O. FREIGHT SERVICE that they have been entirely orderly so far."

Hackney said:

"My men will co-operate with the state police. This is a big thing and we're going to use common sense."

Mayor H. D. Minerd, of Connellsville, sent word to the camp that the city was without funds to feed them but a meal had been prepared for them at noon and he "would try" to have more food if any of the veterans remained tomorrow. He told the Sun-Telegraph:

"We'll try to feed them as long as we can. I haven't asked for state police aid because we don't need it. They're an orderly lot of boys."

VETS MOVE HERE

About 125 veterans from the Strip and Lawrenceville districts moved into Sharpsburg under the leadership of James J. McGrath shortly before noon today.

They were taken to the water and light plant building by Chief of Police Sam Fair, where they were fed.

Fair asked one of the leaders:

"Are you going to board trains?"

He answered:

"We're going on the trains or to the morgue."

After their meals the Lawrenceville-Strip contingent moved to the Pennsylvania Railroad yards near the Aspinwall dam. They waited there for a delegation expected from Woods Run and Manchester.

POLICE MOBILIZED

They said they intended to "hop" the first freight to come through headed toward Washington. Railroad detectives, scattered along the right-of-way, said they would attempt to prevent the boarding.

Pittsburgh police were mobilized yesterday for the first major wave of the marching bonus-seekers.

Hundreds after hundreds of the ex-soldiers swarmed through the city and its environs without the least disorder.

Almost every infoming freight train and many passenger and mail trains bore delegations of varying sizes. Scores came aboard trucks furnished by various communities.

RED MOVES FAIL

The major portion of the group which clashed with police in Cleveland and seized trains there passed through the city without causing any trouble.

A proposed march from Washington, Pa., fell through when it was found it had been organized by radicals. Transportation by state and private interests was refused when it was learned that "Reds" dominated the groups.

A large delegation of veterans from Duquesne and Homestead was planning to be on its way by sundown.

More than 2,000 persons turned out Sunday to see 450 veterans from that city and surrounding communities leap to fast freight trains which attempted to speed past on the B. and O. tracks.

FORCE TRAINS TO STOP

An airline was fouled and the train stopped at Versailles.

The second section of the same freight was then forced to stop in McKeesport and 150 of the "marchers," swarming down upon it like flies, were securely intrenched on the cars before the train was started again.

GIBBONS VISITS BONUS CAMP

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(Universal.)—Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent and feature writer for the Hearst Newspapers, visited three bonus army camps here yesterday and was given a rousing reception by the veterans.

At the Ancostia camp Gibbons was hoisted onto a rough platform and asked by the bonus marchers to "say a word for us." Gibbons replied:

"I was with you in France when you were on the up, and I'm with you here when you are down.

"You are winning the sympathy of the country by your manly conduct. Lots of us want the present situation in this country changed. You have our sympathy and respect."

The boy is in Allegheny General Hospital. Emil W. Schulties, 41, 1150 Buente street, alleged driver of the auto, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

Bonus Marching Vets Get Meals, Aid Here

Many Towns Provide Food for Men on Trek to Capital

The boys who marched to war and who are now marching to Washington by thousands to ask for immediate payment of the bonus have not been forgotten—so far as food is concerned, at least.

Throughout the Pittsburgh district, as the ex-service men swarmed on to the national capital, emergency kitchens sprang up to care for them.

The Helping Hand Society dormitories in Water street fed many today and yesterday.

Sharpsburg Borough officials took a Pittsburgh delegation of almost 75 in hand at noon as they went there to board trains for their trek and fed them well, making preparations at the same time to feed others expected later in the day.

McKeesport merchants sent a portable kitchen to Washington to find and feed that city's contingent when it reaches the capital.

Wilkinsburg, under the leadership of Burgess William Turner and members of the David I. Rankin Post of Veterans of Foreign Wars, prepared food for 500 veterans expected late last night. When they failed to arrive the rations were kept in readiness for the first group that reaches the borough.

In Connellsville, where a large group of the veterans were stranded today, the city found itself without funds to feed the hungry marchers. Volunteers soon acquired the needed food and, with Mayor H. D. Minerd supervising, close to 200 of the men were fed at the police station.

Plotter Killed, 30 Perished by Flames

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP.)—James Mundos, 40, was trapped and burned to death and the lives of 30 other persons were imperiled early today in a confectionery store fire which Mundos apparently had set with his own hand.

Gasoline, with which the store interior was soaked, spread the flames so rapidly to dwellings above that only heroic rescue work of firemen and the police prevented heavy possible loss of life. Two children were rescued by police from roof of an adjoining building.

King's Kin Graduates From Georgetown

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Among Georgetown's 576 graduates today was a young man of royal blood—Prince Mondiyavat Svasti, brother-in-law of Siam's King.

GANG ROUNDUP IN LINDY CASE

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—The Daily News says a roundup of every major gang leader in New York City has been ordered in a police effort to determine whether Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was the victim of an underworld hoax when he paid a $50,000 ransom for the return of his child, later found dead.

The brief detention yesterday of Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer, described by police as the Bronx beer baron, was declared by the News to have been a part of the roundup.

The paper ascribes the same police motive to the recent arrest, and subsequent dismissal, of Salvatore Spitale, appointed by Col. Lindbergh as a go-between in an effort to recover his kidnaped son.

The roundup was described as having been undertaken independently of the Bronx County and New Jersey investigations of the kidnaping and slaying. Others marked by the newspaper for probable police questioning included Owney Madden and Morris Rosner.

Philadelphia Group Starts Bonus March

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—(INS.)—About 200 former service men, Philadelphia's contingent of the "bonus army" left here today expressing their intention of going to Washington to demand cash payment of the bonus to World War veterans. The group was led by Leon Odler, of the Workers Ex-Service League. He said:

"We will walk all the way if we have to."

for feeding the veterans were exhausted when Capt. William G. Sott, in charge of the commissary purchased $200 worth of beef, beans, potatoes, rice, coffee, milk and sugar.

Police estimated there would be 4,000 in the Capital by tomorrow night, with no prospect of food for Wednesday.

Trucks will be available Thursday for transportation of all those who wish to leave the city.

POLICE AT CAPITOL

Fifty metropolitan police were assigned to the Capitol at the request of Kenneth Romney, sergeant-at-arms of the House, who said he hoped they would remain until Congress adjourns.

One group of 125 veterans was directed to leave the House office building because capitol police believed they were Communists. They were trying to call on Representative Bachrach (Rep.), of New Jersey. There was no violence and the veterans left peaceably.

Later another delegation of 100 approached the east entrance of the building. Stopped there, they said they lanted to see Representative Crowther (Rep.), of New York.

Police allowed two or three to enter while the remainder waited on the Capitol Plaza.

Society Girl Causes Arrest of Annoyer

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—On complaint of Miss Faith Vilas, socially prominent daughter of Charles Vilas, Wall street lawyer, Thomas Ryan, 35, was arrested Saturday night on a charge of disorderly conduct. Detective Thomas Tunney, brother of the former heavyweight champion, who made the arrest, said he found 20 photographs of society women and actresses in Ryan's room.

Miss Vilas, who was to be married today, said Ryan called her by telephone and insulted her.

CHOICE OF JURY BEGINS IN TRIAL OF BLEDSOE

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 6.—In a tense, crowded courtroom a former Fayette County detective and an alleged racketeer today pleaded not guilty to the three-year-old murder of Jack Donohoe, one-time constable.

R. C. Bledsoe, former sleuth, and Cosmo Stangoni, of Masontown, shouted their denial of guilt as they were arraigned before Judge S. John Morrow.

Pleas entered, counsel for both sides prepared to select a jury from the panel of 100 men and women. This is expected to require two days.

FIRST JUROR

First juror accepted was W. Allen McDowell, 30, Uniontown engineer and Carnegie Tech graduate.

Waiting to testify for the prosecution was the state's star witness, Anthony W. (Tony) Bell, also a former county detective, one-time police chief of Masontown and pal of the defendants.

Himself tried and acquitted of the murder, Bell now confesses his part in the crime and admits that the defense which won him freedom was a carefully planned lie. He and Bledsoe, he now declares, planned the murder.

But this charge Bledsoe denies and charges a frameup.

JUDGE SELECTED

Judge Morrow was chosen to try the case by his colleagues, Judges D. W. Henderson and Thomas H. Hudson. The selection was kept secret until court convened today.

Prosecuting Bledsoe and Stangoni is District Attorney Wade K. Newell, who was counsel for Bell at the first trial.

Bell confessed the crime, for which he cannot be tried again, after he had been arrested in Buffalo, accused of impersonating a prohibition agent. For this arrest he is serving a prison term, which will be interrupted to allow him to take the stand here.

Donohoe's body, riddled with bullets, was found in a lonely lane near Masontown on the morning of July 31, 1929.

DYED MAN HELD IN HOLDUPS

A young man, who dyed his eyebrows and sideburns as a disguise when he held up a half dozen gasoline stations, was arrested downtown early today, police reported.

He was picked up by a police radio crew near the A. D. Miller gas station, in Penn avenue at Barbeau street, after the attendant, Henry Schrader, had noticed him loitering. Schrader then identified him as the bandit who held up the station last Friday.

The prisoner, Henry Vrotley, 20, who lives in a downtown rooming house, admitted a half-dozen stickups, police say, after they found him armed and uncovered a set of hair dyes in his room.

He implicated Wilford Crosby, 20, of Reifert street, Carrick, whom police also arrested. Police said they suspected the two of being connected with the robbery of the Carrick street car barns.

In Central Police Court, Vrotley was identified by two gas station attendants, but Crosby denied any holdup activities. Both were held for investigation after Vrotley admitted the two jobs.

Fourth Bidder Fails To Qualify, Fifth To Get Chance

The comedy of the county parks' refreshment stand concessions took on a new chapter today, making it an even funnier book. It now runs something like this:

CHAPTER I—John P. Kearcher, former Seventeenth Ward Alderman, is awarded the contract on his high bid of 35 per cent gross profits to the county.

CHAPTER II—Kearcher informs the county commissioners he cannot post the required $25,000 surety bond and the contract is given to the Penn Sportservice, Inc., Forbes Field concessionaire, and second high bidder.

CONTRACT III—The Penn Sportservice, Inc., surrenders its contract, unwilling to share the cost of county checkers on each stand.

CHAPTER IV—L. T. Rhoades, third high bidder, informs the Commissioners he doesn't care for the contract, either.

CHAPTER VI—(Written today)—McTighe informs the Commissioners he can't post a surety bond, but will post a $25,000 real estate bond.

CHAPTER VII—(Written today in a key of despair)—County Commissioners ordered the next 10 high bidders to post bonds before next Wednesday, when the highest will be given the concessions.

DEFECTIVE PIPE CASE SIFTED

Wrong specifications were blamed for defective water pipes in South Park as the investigation of county misgovernment was resumed today with Assistant County Solicitor C. B. Mehard questioning the witnesses.

The first witness, a former pipe line inspector, said he told County Parks Director Paul B. Ries of cast iron connections in pipes to the golf course and was informed such connections were called for in the specifications. "Excessive leakage necessitated replacing the lines with wrought iron pipe," he said.

When the witness looked over catalogs for additional valves in the system and found the prices of a pipe supply company were high, he said a stenographer at South Park told him that a county official was a "big stockholder" in that company and that it would get the business.

Baby Seal's First Aquarium Meal Costs $50

BOSTON, June 6 (INS).—Alphonse, baby seal at the South Boston Aquarium, had taken his first "real" meal today. The meal check was $50.

Since the arrival eight days ago from Old Orchard, Me., where he was found disporting on the rocks, Alphonse has been a source of worry to caretakers at the aquarium. He has refused to take anything with the exception of a small quantity of milk. But yesterday Alphonse broke his hunger strike, tipped over a glass jar containing two Siphostoma Fusci, rare members of the deep sea horse family, and devoured one with a relish. While aquarium caretakers were glad to see Alphonse was off his hunger strike, it was a costly meal.

When the cutover was made J. "Andy" Magerry, who had charge of the inauguration of service through the old Court switchboard in 1903, put through the first call from the new dial exchange. The call was to F. J. Chesterman, Bell Telephone Company vice president and general manager, who commended Magerry and his associates for their work.

When the remainder of the 6,300 Grant telephones are changed to dial operation August 27, a $2,350,000 conversion program will have been completed.

Seeks to Discover Value, Extent Of Deposits.

To determine the value and availability of Amchem Co.'s clay stone deposits, C. L. Perkins, School of Mineral Industries at Pennsylvania State College, is making a preliminary survey of quarries in this district.

After visiting the deposits near Rankin and in Stanton avenue, Perkins said there were quantities of sandstone available for building loose chutes and retaining walls. He was unable to say whether it could be economically machined for major construction work.

The survey is being conducted by the Greater Pennsylvania Council with a view to tabulating information on stone and assisting the development of the industry.

HELEN MOODY FINDS AMELIA SURPRISING

Tennis Star Interviews Sea Flier; Marvels at Feat Which Baffled Many Men

By HELEN WILLS MOODY

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

PARIS, June 6.—Surrounded by flowers that left the air heavy with their scent, Amelia Earhart Putman stood beside a French window in the drawing room of her hotel suite here.

It was hard to realize that this slight, almost frail-looking young woman had accomplished what many men had tried to do and had failed. It was surprising, too, that she could possibly look so fresh and charming after such a strenuous ordeal.

She was wearing a very simple dress, a tailored brown with a little jacket. Her hair was standing slightly on end in curling wisps.

TELLS OF DECISION

It is rather difficult to ask the questions uppermost in one's mind of such a famous person; one reason being that one feels one's questions are exactly those asked by everyone else. The first thing that came to my mind was:

"When and at what moment did you decide to fly across the Atlantic all alone? Did you decide suddenly?"

Smiling, Mrs. Putnam answered:

"The decision came more or less naturally, by itself. I felt I had had enough experience to make the attempt—if ever I shall be qualified to fly across the Atlantic, I thought, it should be now."

This is a good pointer for people who think they can learn to fly overnight. Mrs. Putnam regards it as a serious study which, indeed, it must be. She is cautious by nature. She said:

"I don't believe in taking chances."

NEEDS CLOTHES

She wishes to see more of Paris, explaining, "I don't know it at all," and, showing that she is as feminine as her less adventurous sisters, she laughingly complained that she has scarcely any clothes at all at the moment.

I got around to another question that everyone likes to ask her. I said:

"What was the great moment in your flight—when you saw land?"

Her voice had a wistful ring as she replied:

"It was when I saw a little fishing boat. I went toward it and circled round it—just so as to let someone know I had gotten that far."

A lone person coming out of the vast sky and hurrying to give a wordless message to fishermen in their boat.

Mrs. Putnam said she hoped her flight would do its bit towards aiding the study of long-distance air voyages. She added:

"At least it may be helpful in some way to the women in aviation."

PARIS, June 6.—(AP.)—Amelia Earhart Putnam attended the second annual international aviation meet, at St. Germain, yesterday, where she saw spectacular stunts by the most famous European aviators, who held spellbound a crowd of more than 100,000.

She was wildly cheered by the crowd lining the fences as she made an automobile tour of the field. Meanwhile the band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

CAMERON HEADS BANK BILL WAR

HARRISBURG, June 6.—(AP.)—Peter G. Cameron, former state secretary of banking, today announced the organization of the Association of Independent Unit Banks of America for the purpose of "upholding the autonomy of state laws as a cardinal principle in federal branch banking legislation."

Cameron's announcement said:

"Branch banking such as is provided for in Section 19 of the Glass bill, now pending in the Senate, is objectionable to the vast majority of banks, both state and national, whose management believe the laws of the states should regulate branch banking within their borders."

The section would give national banks the right to engage in state-wide branch banking and to extend branch operations beyond state lines within a radius of 50 miles, regardless of the laws of the states.

Cameron, who is executive secretary of the association, said advisory committees will be formed in each state.

3 Seized in Stolen Auto, Guns Found

Three Pittsburgh men were to be turned over to county detectives today following their arrest yesterday in Munhall, when a revolver and sawed-off shotgun were found in an alleged stolen car in which they were riding, Munhall police reported.

John Raiko, 29, of 1221 Caldwell street; Vincent Ponggri, 30, of 1413 Fifth avenue, and Earl Hale, 30, of 1411 Lincoln avenue, were arrested by Policeman A. W. Batchen when he noticed one of the men carrying the shotgun under his coat. The car was said to be the property of Peter Buncher, of 1231 Epiphany street.

BURGLARS TAKE KEYS TO CITY

MARSEILLES, (INS)—If Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York should happen to pay a visit to this famous old seaport city in the near future, he would not be presented with official keys because they are missing at the present moment.

There were two massive silver ones kept in a showcase in the Museum of Old Marseilles along with other priceless relics which had passed through the hands of many famous men, such as Emperor Napoleon III on one of his visits here.

Burglars recently broke into the case and made away with the keys and other fine objects. If the keys do not turn up shortly, new ones will be made in exact replica.

FRANCE TO AID MANCHURIA

TOKIO, June 6 (AP)—Alfred Massenet, director of the Franco-Asiatic bank, told the Associated Press today that he had come to Tokio as the representative of a French financial group which includes banks other than his own, ready to lend "several million francs" to the state of Manchoukuo.

The money would be for renewal of trackage and rolling stock of the Chinese Eastern Railway, the loan to be made with the provision that Manchoukuo and Soviet Russia recognize to a satisfactory extent the claims of French investors who supplied the original construction funds for the railway through the Czarist government and the Russo-Asiatic bank.

$2,500 Movie Lovers' Contest Opens Today

First of Pictures In Title Test Published

Today's the day to meet opportunity face to face. Today's the day that may, at last, turn the tide of fortune to your advantage. Today's the starting day of the Sun-Telegraph $2,500 cash prize Movie Lovers' Contest, an opportunity for pastime and profit for old and young.

Under the present economic conditions $2,500 is an extravagant sum for any newspaper to offer in a cash prize contest, but it is largely on account of the widespread depression that the Sun-Telegraph is making this liberal offer with the idea in mind of eventually making a distribution of cash that will be a welcome relief to many families.

Here is a chance to win $500 all in one prize, with added opportunity to win as high as $250, $175, $125, three prizes at $75 each, seven prizes at $50 and 10 prizes at $25, and so on until the entire $2,500 is awarded. In all there will be 148 cash prizes and the contest is open to everyone, men and women, boys and girls, living in Pittsburgh or within 100 miles of Pittsburgh.

The Movie Lovers' Contest should meet with popular response from the contest standpoint because everyone, everywhere, is familiar with this subject. You only have to use your wits in the identification of a series of daily pictures, each of which will represent the name of a popular motion picture. You will get a list of titles with every picture distributed daily in the "Want Ad" pages of the Sun-Telegraph, and within this list you will find the correct title. Turn to page 4 for Contest Picture No. 1 today.

To participate in the Movie Lovers' Contest, however, you must send in your registration blank. You will find this in the announcement on the above page. Clip it or copy it—register every member of your family on a separate blank. Bear in mind that this contest offers you an opportunity to really beat the depression. Remember that the cash prize list totals $2,500. Send in your registration blank today—don't delay. Start on the road to fortune with the first contest picture today.

Strawberry Jam MADE IN 12 MINUTES

BY Inus C. B. Osborne.
CHAMPION IOWA JELLY MAKER

"IN the last 5 years my jams and jellies have won 83 prizes at the Iowa State Fair. And the Certo short-boil jelly making method deserves most of the credit.

"Certo, first of all, reduces boiling time to one minute for crushed strawberry jam, for instance. And this fact explains both the speed and economy of the Certo method of making jam or jelly, as well as the quality of the product that results.

"For with only 1 minute's hard boiling needed, 12 minutes is ample time to make a full batch of prize-winning jam or jelly. And since no fruit juice has time to boil away, I often save as much as 2½¢ per glass over jam or jelly made the old long boil way.

"And my Certo-made jam tastes better, too . . . simply because the short boil keeps the ripe, delicate flavor of the fruit itself from boiling away in wasteful steam."

Why don't you do as Mrs. Osborne suggests and order a supply of Certo today—with your strawberries? You will be delighted at the time and money it will save you. And the extra flavor it will give your jams and jellies, too . . . if you will follow carefully the Certo recipes that come in the booklet attached to every Certo bottle. Get your bottle from your grocer's today. It is a product of General Foods Corporation.

Mrs. C. B. Osborne, Iowa State Jelly Champion, shown in the artist's sketch above, is only one of the many State Fair jam and jelly prize winners who use Certo in making all their blue ribbon jams and jellies.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Society Happenings

HISTORY OF FOSTER PUBLISHED

In Maytair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Now that the Allegheny Country Club horse show is over, society is once more concentrating its interest in June brides. One of them was Elizabeth K. Utley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Utley, of St. James street, who was married [illegible] W. Bracken, jr., son of the [illegible] K. Brackens of New York, on Saturday.

The wedding took place in the Groton School Chapel, Groton, Mass., with the headmaster officiating. The bride, who was attended [illegible] wore a white crepe dress, a hat to match, and carried white roses and white sweetpeas showered with the sweetpeas. David Bracken, of New York, was his brother's best man.

Wedding Dinner

Decorating the chapel were white hydrangeas with a touch of pink against a background of cibotium ferns. A wedding dinner in the Groton Inn followed.

After their wedding trip the Brackens will be at home in Pat Hills, N. J., where Mr. Bracken is assistant headmaster of the Somerset Hills School.

Dr. and Mrs. Utley attended the ceremony.

* * *

A bride of today is Mary Blair Holmes, daughter of the Joseph Horne Holmeses, who will marry Leavitt Corning, jr., son of the Leavitt Cornings of St. Paul, Minn., this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the Holmes home.

* * *

June is just brimming over with social activities with benefit after benefit, and wedding after wedding. But in spite of all these enticing things to see and hear and do this month, the travel bug has bitten a great many folks. Some have gone for the season to summer homes and others for just a day or two and back again.

Travel Notes

Mrs. Henry Chalfant, who has been spending some time in Gotham, where she was a guest at the Berkshire, has gone to York Harbor, Me.

The John M. Phillipses, of Brownsville road, are leaving Friday night to attend the commencement exercises at Vassar, where their daughter, Margaret, is graduating. They will be accompanied by another daughter, Mrs. John Pennington Henry, of Carnegie, who is a Vassar alumna. She will attend her class reunion.

Matilda O. Hays Tells 'Why' of Scholarship

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Matilda Orr Hays, indomitable pioneer of the Pittsburgh club world, has compiled a handbook of history concerning Stephen C. Foster and has published it in neat and attractive form. The reason for the booklet is, of course, to acquaint readers with what Miss Hays terms the why and the what-for of the Stephen C. Foster Scholarship Foundation which she established and is seeking to build up as an appropriate memorial to the Pittsburgh composer.

The scholarship, it is assumed will go first to one of the present generation of the Foster line for further artistic education. Indeed Dallas Rose Foster's great-grandson, who has already shown progress in music and art, has been asked to accept the scholarship. Miss Hays has traced the genealogy of the Foster family, has illustrated her pages with interesting cuts and gives many illuminating sidelights on the famous composer, his family and his songs.

Controller Albright Of Monongahela Dies

MONONGAHELA, Pa., June 6.—Robert G. Albright, 36, City Controller, World War veteran and first lieutenant of Company A, 110th Regiment, National Guard, died suddenly yesterday in Memorial Hospital. Albright, a leader in Washington County politics, had just begun his fourth term as City Controller.

U. D. of C. Chapter Ends Season With Luncheon

A charmingly appointed bridge luncheon in the Pittsburgh Country Club on Saturday closed the fifteenth year for Pittsburgh Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, and also served to celebrate the anniversary of Jefferson Davis. Mrs. Adolph Hoffman, re-elected president of the chapter, was introduced by Mrs. H. K. B. Marshall, and she in turn introduced the other officers, including the honorary president, Mrs. Fanny Loney Hooff.

Mrs. Robert F. Metcalfe, who with Mrs. Hoffman had attended the regional conference of the Daughters in East Orange, N. J., made a brief report. Mrs. Virginia Yeamans, herself a Southerner, read from Joseph Hergesheimer's "The Rose of the Mississippi," in which one sees the president of the Confederacy through his wife's eyes—the wife who loved him with such a passionate loyalty that she believed all who differed with him were wrong.

The red and white of the Confederacy were carried out in the clusters of peonies and the candles of the table decorations, the five flags of the Confederacy having their usual place in the decorative scheme. Mrs. J. W. Rese arranged the luncheon.

Shrewd Deals Shown By Pavlowa's Estate

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—Anna Pavlowa's estate, estimated at $200,000 when she died in January, 1931, is actually nearly twice that large due to her skill in investing money, it was disclosed today with the filing of documents in connection with settlement of the estate. BRILLIANT COLOR BRIGHTENS CONTINENTAL EVENING SCENE

Sketched in Paris

PARIS, June 6.—If not white, or black, then brilliant color; this is a current Paris recipe for smart evening clothes.

* * *

NOT ONLY brilliant color, say the French couturiers, but brilliant materials as well. Not necessarily shining satin—though that is a favorite, right now—but materials which are striking in texture. Velvets, bagheera and other uncut fabrics, taffeta, faille—these are the weaves that often make the most striking evening clothes.

* * *

THE VELVET wraps worn in Paris nowadays are of at least a dozen varieties. They range all the way from the long voluminous coat which covers one's entire frock, one's arms, wrists and throat, to the tiny capelet just big enough to throw around bare shoulders. They vary from the stiffly tailored evening coat made like an officer's overcoat — military looking affairs of firm velveteen, to softly folding wraps which outline every curve of the figure.

* * *

CALLOT—an old hand at this type of thing—makes some stunning evening capes of this latter variety. They are cut from the softest of silk velvets, and in the hand are shapeless affairs. These are the wraps that always look different each time they're worn; every wearer has a little knack of her own, and holds them about waistline or hips in individual ways.

* * *

THE CALLOT wrap in the sketch is of this type. It is made of very dark blue silk velvet, topped with a scarf of light gray fox, posed high on one shoulder.

* * *

THE TAFFETA dress in the sketch, from Lucile, is fashioned from vividly colored patterns. Poppy red, light and dark greens, yellow, pale blues—all these colors are splashed through the design. The ruffles which form the cascade at the back are pyramided taffeta upon georgette—a trick of posing one taffeta ruffle upon a georgette one, to get the effect of fullness without heaviness. The georgette is printed in the same pattern as the taffeta.

MARION DAVIES GIVES $2,000 FOR ESSAYS

Star Rewards 4 Students Who Rivaled Prize Winner With Air Scholarships

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Receipt of a $2,000 check from Marion Davies, film star, for four aeronautical scholarships is announced by James K. Fish, department adjutant of the American Legion in San Francisco.

The awards were made after a statewide essay contest conducted by the Legion on the subject: "Commercial Aviation—Essential to Our National Defense."

An original scholarship of $500 was donated by Joseph L. Faimer, of Berkeley and Los Angeles. Fisk explained that when Miss Davies was asked to present the scholarship, it was mentioned that the first five essays were so excellent that the judges had had difficulty in selecting the winner.

Miss Davies, he said, immediately offered four more scholarships. On the back of her check she wrote:

"The proceeds of this check shall be used exclusively for charitable, literary or educational purposes."

Winners of Miss Davies' scholarships are Janis Hecht, of Lowell High School, in San Francisco; Ellsworth Whalen, of Point Loma Union High School; Walter Bertram, of Sacramento Union High School, and George Bedinger, of Kern County Union High School. Calvin D. Yaggy, of Carpenteria Union High School, won the original prize.

Presentation of the scholarships was a feature of the Memorial Day services at the United Airport in Burbank. They provide for actual instruction in aeronautics in any school in the state approved by the United States Department of Commerce.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: You'll probably hear things about my holidaying in Bermuda, but the fact is that I had no idea that he was going on the same boat or that he was going. At any rate, I didn't see him after we docked, so dismiss any parlor talk you may hear. Of course I'm glad you are back, for now there are headaches to have again, and things to do and hours to keep. It was maddening doing nothing all that time, so thanks for you-know-what. I see by the gazettes that Al Schildkraut and that Mary M. Kay lass were telescoped in the old county after all. You owe numerous bills. Your mail will arrive Sunday. Please toss an orchid at L. Wallington, who served E. Cantor on the air, and now is announcing for H. Richman. He is trying to be different. He says it this way: With the consent of the owners of the copyright. And a pass to P. Crosby for observing that what the country needs most is to stifle the depression is a 4 per cent tax and 40 per cent beer.

Look out for Eddie Fox, Jr., who is having himself a time giving friends golf balls. When you hit them a wallop with a drive, they break into bits. A new gag imported from Yurrup and made of soap. Mrs. J. Osterman, whose husband is also doing a column for N. Y. has never been so thin—which gives you an idea how much salary he is getting. Overheard a couple of chaps discussing the Seabury-Walker investigation and one of them mercilessly observed: Norman Thomas, the Socialist star, must be getting a mess of ammunition. Before I forget: Here's the Smart Alec Cocktail: one part cognac, one part chartreuse, one part cointreau, dashes of bitters to dull the burn. Don't waste ice on it.

Since you've been absent: Doris Duke Who Has All That Money has been taken up by the Broadway Brethren. A democratic, quiet and unpretentious person in fact one of the dandiest you might say unmarried catches. Anna Sten—she was imported from the Russian peasantry by Mr. Goldwyn, has already conquered enough of the American tongue to pass now that Hollywood has beckoned. They tell me that while Miss Garbo and Miss Dietrich and the other seductive screen sirens have to drape themselves in enchanting silks and satins to wilt the male patronage, that this Miss Sten can promote as much "stimulation value" in you without going to all that trouble . . . Anna, they would have you believe, is just as much of a goddess draped merely in calico . . . We shall see.

Helen Meaney, Olympic champ, posed eight times for Jose Camarero de Malborro, famous Argentine painter . . . The painting nearing completion has been thefted from the dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Rainey, 151 E. 83. Bluecoats from the E. 67th St. Station are investigating. . . . There's a heart throb in the fix of Charlotte Fixel of the Erlanger case, who lost that decision as well as one with her landlord at 37 W. 72 the other day. . . . Of the letters I liked: P. Sweinhart's in which he offered Walter Kingsley's phrase: "What are friends for—if not to be used?"

I see that the quip which Arthur Caesar first pulled in a Palace Theater box in 1924, bobbed up again in the Nyauker. I mean the one about the conceited lad who when asked if he had an Encyclopedia at his home replied: "No, but what is it you wish to know?"

Why not repeat those nifties of that time yourself or are you sensitive about people whose memories are too good? . . . You might inquire in the caustic delivery that is why Boris Petroff, who staged two shows in a week for the Paramount houses, didn't even rate a mention in the billing or the adverts . . . Seems a shame. . . . The sour breaks come in bunches for some guys, but there ought to be a statute prohibiting them from happening to the capables. His clever wife, by the way, may be found in the chorus of these shows under the name of Dorothea Berke.

Among other things one hears in a day is that they have perfected a new treatment for ciggies—so that the butt goes out the moment it is thrown away. No smouldering or anything, fabry that. D. Murray's simile is good to wit: Difficult as finding a U. S. mail truck driver with an inferiority complex. . . . If the Russian bug bites many more newspaper offices will be empty this summer. No fewer than 16 gentlemen of the press are getting passports, the dopes. . . . In case anyone tries to stump you about the exact address of the New York Public Library at 42nd St. and 5th Ave., tell them it is 476 Fifth. . . . Ain't I the one though? . . . Here's something I'm certain will make you titter—Frances Bowden, the little girl "discovered" by Borrah Minevitch as a radio find because of her contagious hick drawl and who always says she lives in a Mid-West town "five miles by dust" (meaning a dirt road) is not a rube at all. . . . She's a clever actress and a big city gal from Bumminghame, Alabamy. . . . She fooled all of you, at any rate, by heck.

La Livingstone, now on the Pacific shores, is in the throes of another sensational plot. . . . This time she intends parenting an extravagantly appointed yacht—to accommodate about a dozen couples. . . . The big idea is keep the boat going back and forth across the big Pond until the fares are fed up. . . . G. Pihodna called to say that the colleges will add a little class to the breadlines this Summer, and Fred Allen observes that many of the Park Avenue apartment hotels, sensing a moratorium on business, are putting small tables in front so that the doormen may play solitaire. . . .

. . . You may even matters by remarking as did J. Chapman, that the Royale, like all Chanin theaters, is most difficult to get out of—the only thing that appears to get out quickly is a play. . . . Robert Reud, better known about town as Garbo's Man Friday, is departing for the old country. Could there be any connection with his trip and Greta's? . . . A better tip is that the recently melted Bror Dahlberg, the celotex magnate, is the "mysterious Chicagoan" so often mentioned by La Negri. —Your Girl Friday.

Doctor's Formula Brings Down High Blood Pressure

Attacks the Basic Causes of This Dreaded Condition

Blood Pressure can be reduced and discomfort, suffering and fear eliminated with a simple herb medicine. So why experiment with harsh, drastic remedies which may and often do cause more harm than good?

An eminent French physician developed a formula of botanic and marine herbs known here as Dr. Morel's No. 5, which for years he used in his practice to bring blessed relief to thousands. With this formula, taken as a simple tea, he reduced blood pressure and relieved such symptoms as fullness in the head, headache, ringing in the ears, dizziness, heart fluttering, exhaustion after slight effort, and intermittent pains about the heart.

Get yourself a pkg. of Dr. Morel's No. 5 today. With the first cupful its helpful action begins. Some pain and nerve tension and that feeling that some calamity impends disappear. Headache, fullness, dizziness go—you feel as if a great weight had been lifted from you. Dr. Morel's No. 5 (in the green box, enough only for a day's use) is sold by Mayflower Drug Co. and other well-stocked drug stores.

Gangster to Reappear In Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 6.

All official edicts to the contrary, the gangster will make his reappearance on the screen this year.

Even now, Universal plans a sensational film to be called "The Rebirth of a Nation." This story, an original by Albert De Mond, depicts the country in revolt against the powers of racketeering. Evangelical as well as melodramatic, the picture will show flashes of Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt and other great statesmen.

According to advance report, Universal will make The Rebirth of a Nation one of the major items on its new program. An attempt will be made, it is said, to secure Edward G. Robinson, Paul Muni or a star of this caliber to play the ruler of the underworld.

Pending the return of Carl Laemmle, Jr., from New York, Al De Mond and Lon Ostrow are hard at work on a screen treatment. There is talk of the studio's trying to borrow Richard Wallace to direct.

And significantly, in the meanwhile, Scarface continues to roll up box-office records all over the country.

HERE'S A STORY

Will Mahoney, one of the better comics, tells a story about a vaudeville team who saved up for years so they could go to New York and try to break into big-time. While there was still a big-time to break into.

They arrived with $1,000 and high hopes. Try as they might, however, the only offers they got were for a few weeks in outlying towns. After these were played, they got no offers at all.

Six months went by. The $1,000 was about gone. One morning the husband got up early and started to dress.

"Where are you going?" the wife asked.

"What do you mean?"

The vaudeville-husband looked at her wearily.

"For crying out loud," he snapped, "are you stage-struck again?"

WHAT GOSSIPS SAY

I like the casual way they do it in Hollywood. Austin Parker has been engaged by Paramount to write the dialogue and script for the next picture of his estranged wife, Miriam Hopkins. . . . After 25 days in the hospital, Joe E. Brown has the doctor's promise that he may return home in about a week. . . . Connie Bennett tells me she will take a seven weeks' vacation before reporting to R-K-O for her next picture. After that she will go to Europe. . . . Sidney Howard has put off his departure until he can talk over Ronald Colman's new story for Samuel Goldwyn. This may or may not be the U-boat picture. Ronnie, it seems, hates wearing uniforms. . . . Having arranged for the publication of his new novel, Jim Tully is on his way back to Hollywood via the Panama Canal. While in New York, Tully was offered $1,000 to appear in the Palace. He excused himself saying:

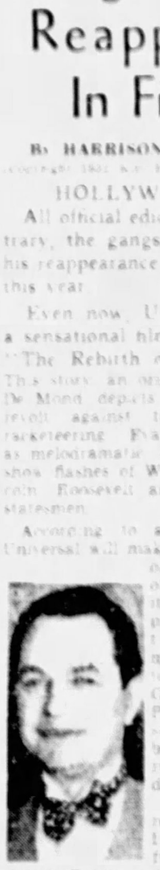
"I can make less money for making a bigger ass of myself in Hollywood."

Though she has finished her picture, Ruth Chatterton is still living at the studio. . . . I was right, wasn't I, about Judith Vosselli having something more to say about the Reno divorce and subsequent remarriage of her socially prominent husband?

The latest is that Tay Garnett will direct Universal's Broadway columnist story, for which they are still seeking a title. Tay will come over after he finishes "One Way Passage" at Warner's.

Lew Ayres, by the way, is definitely set to play the role Walter Winchell turned down.

This picture, which has been written by William Anthony McGuire, will start about the middle of the month with Felix Young producing.



Miriam Hopkins

Elissa Landi is "The Woman in Room 13" opening Thursday in the Fulton.

ROOM 13

Cary Grant Signs New Screen Contract

Cary Grant, the English player who won success in musical comedy on Broadway and then entered picture work, has signed a new contract as a Paramount film actor. Grant made his screen debut in "This Is the Night" and then appeared in "Sinners in the Sun." He now is working with Sylvia Sidney and Fredric March in "Merrily We Go to Hell" and next week will play the juvenile lead in Tallulah Bankhead's "Devil and the Deep."

Trying Clothes Irks Miss Bankhead

Studio Plans Boulder Dam Picture

Quiet preparations are under way at Universal to get the jump on the industry with a Boulder Dam picture. Henry Henningson, studio manager, has made a secret trip to Boulder City to complete negotiations for the filming of spectacular scenes at the site of operations.

Will Rogers' Salary Among Largest

Though little has been said of it, Will Rogers gets one of the largest salaries in the movies. Report sets it at $225,000 a picture. The comedian has one more film to make at Fox before his present contract expires this fall.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

It is reported that the Barrymores, Ethel, John and Lionel, will receive a total sum of $250,000 for the one picture in which the famed Royal Family of the stage will appear. Ethel and John will be paid a flat sum, the share of John being estimated to be $100,000 to $125,000, while Lionel will receive $4,000 a week, so the story runs. Miss Barrymore's wage will run more than the $100,000 first offered her for acting in one picture. Lionel is under contract to M-G-M, the studio in which the picture, not yet decided upon, will be made.

* * *

Among the casualties of the year was "Hay Fever," final play of the season in the Alvin. Originally a flop when produced first five years ago, it had a successful run on its revival in New York last winter and it was doing well in Boston until its star, Constance Collier, became ill. After leaving here, it encountered bad business in Detroit and worse luck in Chicago, where it repeated its destiny by taking the count for the second time in its career.

* * *

A series of adventure and mystery films is to be made by Merian C. Cooper and Ernest B. Schoedsack, producers of several grand nature-dramas, including "Chang." The first of these will be "The Most Dangerous Game," adaptation of a prize-winning story by Richard Connell. Robert Armstrong has been assigned to a featured role in the film, of which Irving Pichel, Pittsburgh actor, will serve as co-director with Schoedsack.

'Hotel Continental' Film in Sheridan

"Hotel Continental," photoplay showing activities, that range from sentimental to tragic, in an old hotel about to be torn down is the attraction in the Sheridan Square. Theodore Von Eltz and Peggy Shannon head the cast, which includes two old-time favorites in Henry B. Walthal and Ethel Clayton. J. Farrell Macdonald has the part of a detective. There are crooks in it, and all of the interesting characters seen around a hotel in a big city.

Robinson on Screen Film in Enright

Edward G. Robinson is featured in "Two Seconds," now showing in the Enright, following a downtown run. It is a dramatic film of high emotional quality, fashioned on an inverted plan that softens its most tragic implications. Vivienne Osborne and Guy Kibbee are prominent in the cast.

Pilot, Girl Killed As Planes Collide

LANSING, Mich., June 6 (AP).—A transport pilot and his young woman passenger were killed in a crash resulting from the collision of two airplanes over the Capital City Airport here late yesterday.

The dead are Ford Bott, an experienced pilot, and Miss Elsa Breitenbach, 18. The occupants of the other plane were Carl Schopp, amateur aviator; his son, Carl, Jr., and Irma Breitenbach, sister of the young woman who was killed. Schopp brought his damaged plane to the ground without injury to the occupants.

Trade Board Plans Outing June 30

Oakland Board of Trade will hold its annual picnic June 30 at Kennywood Park. Plans for the outing will be completed at a meeting of the committee Tuesday in Schenley Hotel.

Hollywood Adopting Colonial Styles

Due to the celebration of the Washington Bi-centennial, Hollywood, along with other cities of the United States, has felt the colonial urge in styles as expressed in epaulets, double-breasted jackets, military blues and brass button trimmings. Travis Banton, who creates the complete screen wardrobes for such Paramount stars as Marlene Dietrich, Tallulah Bankhead, Sylvia Sidney, Miriam Hopkins and Carole Lombard, declares that the bi-centennial will have a controlling influence on American fashions for the next 12 months.

Actor's Grouch Pays Big Dividends

The voice with the smile doesn't always win. One actor in Hollywood makes scowls, sneers and grouches pay handsome dividends. He is Robert McWade. Before he came to Hollywood his perpetual peevishness brought him distinction on the New York stage. Now he is playing the garrulous old bank president in Paramount's comedy-drama, "The Sporting Widow." McWade's first grouch part was played 20 years ago in "The Fourth Estate."

BITS OF LIFE

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Charming Lord Dunberry

AMONG THE employes of the Hotel Alabaster excitement ran high. Lord Dunberry was scheduled to arrive that morning, and it was at the Alabaster that he was going to stay. There really shouldn't have been so much commotion, for the Alabaster was one of the best hotels in the nation and had been catering to social lions for some time. But you know how it is when a lord or a duke is mentioned in an American hotel.

The manager issued many instructions to the assistant manager, and personally saw to it that flowers were dispatched to Lord Dunberry's suite. The telephone girls smiled happily as they considered the new thrill of listening in on a royal voice, and the head waiter sent his vest to the cleaner for the second time in a month.

If Lord Dunberry had known of all this excitement, I doubt very much whether he would have gone to the hotel at all. For, while his lordship enjoyed being catered to, it was not his desire to become too conspicuous. There were many reasons for that caution. But I will mention only the police and let the rest of the reasons go by.

Much as I hate to shock the sensitivities of my several lonesome readers, I am compelled to state at this point that Lord Dunberry has long been known as one of the cleverest confidence men in the racket. His real name is known only to himself. But in the underworlds of three or four nations, he is referred to as "the Duke."

There is a definite reason for the title of "the Duke." As soon as you look at him, he impresses you as royalty.

All his life the Duke has traveled first class. The mention of policemen and jails frightened him somewhat, but not sufficiently to make him give up his taste for high living.

A short time ago, he sat himself down with a pal.

"Buggsy," he asserted smilingly, "I have decided that I have been living too dangerously."

His friend's eyes opened wide.

"You're not gonna turn honest?" he cried anxiously.

"Good heavens, no," replied the Duke. "Stop talking nonsense. What I meant to imply was merely that I would no longer take the chances. Instead, I will become the contact man—and let the others do the active work.

"If I have sometimes found it necessary to separate such individuals from a bit of lucre, I can assure you that I did it with a great deal of regret.

"I now find that I do not care for any additional regrets. Under a very appropriate name, I will mingle among the elect and pick a proper chicken for the plucking. I will then turn the chosen one over to the mob—and they will do all the plucking. It's just a little business deal in which the police will find nothing wrong on my part. And you have no idea, my good Buggsy, how it will relieve my conscience."

And that, my friends, is how the Hotel Alabaster received a wire with the announcement that Lord Dunberry, a nobleman of much distinction, would shortly arrive to grace that distinguished establishment . . .

A few days later, with a valet and several trunks that contained old newspapers, Lord Dunberry arrived.

"A bit of a swell dump, eh, Jenkins" he said.

"But we'll have to work rather rapidly," he went on. "We'll have to pay our bills here if we intend to keep operating in this manner. And at the rate they're charging me, we'll be able to linger no more than six or seven days.

"Accordingly, I will have to work fast. After a short nap, I will begin operations immediately. Draw the blinds, my dear Jenkins." . . .

Exactly 24 hours later, his Lordship was in a very nervous mood. Sad to relate, something had arrived to spoil his carefully laid plans. And that something was none other than the house detective of the Alabaster Hotel.

Would you believe that a common, garden variety house detective could disturb the even mind of Lord Dunberry?

Whenever Lord Dunberry would engage a proposed sucker in conversation, that detective was certain to be in the vicinity. No matter where his Lordship went, the detective was never far behind. And it didn't take the Duke long to realize that somebody had put the finger on him.

His Lordship stayed the week out. Watching carefully for his opportunities, he made several guarded attempts to land a sucker that might later be turned over to the mob. But it was no use. He couldn't fool that house detective. Once, when he brought an elderly millionaire to his suite for a cocktail, he thought he had succeeded. But when he opened his door, there was the detective pacing the corridor.

At the end of the week, his Lordship checked out. The detective stood at the door and watched him climb into a machine with his valet. As they were driven away, the Duke cursed softly.

Back in the hotel, the detective was talking to the room clerk.

"It just goes to show you how them rich folks are," he complained bitterly. "I know every swindle in the hotel racket and I watched over that Lord Dunberry for a week like he was a baby.

'A Girl Should Stop Having Dates After She Weds

Andy would like to know. That's what his wife is doing. Married life to her is just one merry party after another, but seldom if ever, with the big boy himself. All night parties—with highly unconventional parlor games.

Is it? Andy wonders.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I am a newly married man 26 years old. My wife is 20. I love her and she says she loves me.

"A short time after I met her and before we were married she said that she loved me and was ready to settle down to one man and was giving up all her former boy friends. She said that it didn't matter to her in the least to 'send them on their way.'

"Our courtship, which lasted six months, was one of peace and harmony.

"But since we have been married (about two months) I have discovered that she has been having dates with some of these former boy friends ever since we were married and with certain ones two or three times a week.

"You see I am not working at home. I only get a chance to see her for three days out of every 12. I have never met any of these fellows. They have been calling at the house when she was there alone and keeping late hours as well as taking her to parties and shows and dinners at restaurants.

KISSED FRIENDS

"She gave a Valentine party. There were four boys and four girls present including herself. The party lasted until 4 o'clock in the morning and there was plenty of booze and gin.

"When I mentioned these affairs to her she admitted them and added that she had even permitted these fellows to kiss her. 'They were just merely friendship kisses,' she remarked. 'They were just merely friends and meant nothing to her,' she told me. 'There is nothing wrong in that and nothing to be ashamed of,' she insists.

"She says she wouldn't care if I went out with my former girl friends. My conscience, however, tells me that my former girl friends would not go out with me since I am married. I wouldn't dare ask one of them to go. It would offend them.

"Still, she insists she loves me.

"Please, what is your opinion? Where should the line be drawn?

"What do you think? Is there any hope for the success of this marriage? ANDY."

A WORTHLESS PARASITE

What do I think? I think she's a cheap, common little tramp, Andy, and nothing else but. And she'll love you just as long as you provide her with plents of cash and play time but not a second longer.

Yes I know that's hard talk but sweet words won't get you anywhere son. You've listened to many of them from the wife already. That girl has a line that makes a Barco-steerer sound like a lisping babe and you're certainly picking grief for yourself if you continue to fall for it.

She's not alone in her game. Every apartment house every hotel lobby is filled with just such worthless little parasites. No work, no responsibility, no standards, they're as vicious as the old saloon door loafers.

And instead of expecting thanks for supporting 'em, Andy, someone should arrest boys like you for maintaining a public nuisance.

That's just a little of what I think of your dame, big boy. But I realize that many won't agree with me. Plents will say she's just a sweet young girl trying to get along. All right! Here's a chance to say it.

Suppose she were YOUR wife, Bill, how would YOU feel about it?

Continuation of Loves Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Farmhouse Folk Await Coming of Lee Chow

"Tell him yourself, Madge," Dicky said when Harry Underwood had acknowledged that part of his reason for coming up to us was curiosity concerning the fate of my play at the hands of Philip Veritzen.

There isn't much to tell," I said. "Mr. Veritzen likes the play very much, or so he says. He has no changes to suggest, and he wishes to put into casting and rehearsal as soon as I can get up into the city which, I told him, could not be until after school opened. So you see, I shall be at your service as errand girl for the rest of the summer."

I salute you," Mr. Underwood said. "It's some feat. I tell you, to have Philip Veritzen approve a play as a whole and want to go into casting and directing it at once."

You don't know the half of it, man," Dicky interposed. "He must want this play badly for he's grovening all over the lot at the feet of our lady playwright here. He threatened to reject the play if she didn't promise to come into the city next Tuesday and begin work on it, and as nearly as I could gather, she told him to get to the hot place out of there and he capitulated, gave her everything she wanted and a few more not on the list."

HARRY PLEASED

"What else did you expect?" Mr. Underwood asked with a sweeping bow to me. "When our Lady Fair gets fairly started it would take a stronger character than Philip Veritzen to withstand her. Even I with all my manly determination would grovel if she but lifted her voice. So what chance has a mere weakling like Phil Veritzen. I ask you once twice and thrice." The answer is none whatever.

Thank you for all the pretty language," I said with a little moue at him. "You certainly know a lot of words but my play is not the only thing on your mind as you yourself intimated."

Yes," Dicky interrupted. "Spoon the lentils, old man, we're all ears."

It won't take long." Mr. Underwood said. "I've just had a message from that Chinese in the city, the erudite one on whom I counted to translate those Chinese words spelled by our friend in delirium," he jerked his head toward the burials, "and which you took down in memory and 12 in shorthand. He can come out tomorrow, but I'll wait here, and—" he hesitated, and I interposed with a question.

Do you think it's really necessary now?"

That's just what I wanted to ask you and His Nibs here," he retorted.

It seems a bit unnecessary," I said slowly, "to make an attempt at translating a delirious gibberish when we have a direct lucid message from him. If what he says is true, Lee Chow himself may be along at any day and we'll be able to get real information from him instead of stuff which from the very nature of things could be only garbled and distorted."

SON MAKES DISCOVERY

Is that the sense of the meeting?" Mr. Underwood asked, with a grin at Dicky.

Second the motion," Dicky replied promptly.

Then it's unanimous," Mr. Underwood said, "for I agree with you. We'll save transportation and fees for our learned friend and wait for Lee Chow."

Wait for Lee Chow!" I echoed under my breath and added the fervent hope that it might not be long before he and Hugh Grantland should arrive upon the scene, bringing, as I was sure they would, the end of the menace from the Chinese miscreants who were virtually besieging the farmhouse.

But one day after another slipped past without bringing either the men or any word of them and the fourth day after my ultimatum to Philip Veritzen as I sat upon the upper veranda with Junior and Roderick, my young son suddenly froze to attention like a pointer.

Mums!" he whispered. "There's something white on that fence post way across the field that wasn't there a minute ago!"

Contract Bridge -:- -:-

HOW TO PLAY
HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The late Mr. Wilbur C. Whitehead was one who contributed much to the development of the game of Auction Bridge, and left his impress also upon the game of Contract. He was a great lover of the game and found great satisfaction in playing.

I am indebted to Dr. Ford H. Hayes, of Butler, Pa., for a hand which Dr. Hayes states Mr. Whitehead thought was the most disappointing that he had ever played. It vividly illustrates the dangers in unfavorable distribution on hands of even apparently overwhelming strength.

North Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	M. Whitehead ♠ A Q 4 ♡ K J 10 9 8 6 ♢ A 6 4 ♣ A
Dr. Hayes ♠ J 10 9 7 ♡ 7 5 4 3 2 ♢ — ♣ 10 8 6 4	Home South	M. S. F. Gerber ♠ K 6 2 ♡ A ♢ J 9 7 3 2 ♣ J 9 5 3
	♠ 8 5 3 ♡ Q ♢ Q 10 8 6 5 ♣ K Q 7 2 Captain French

The eventual contract was four hearts and before that result was reach, Mr. Whitehead hesitated for some time and explained afterwards that he was contemplating a bid of five inviting a Slam, or a bid of six for the Slam, but eventually decided to let well enough alone.

Dr. Hayes' partner, Mr. S. F. Gerber, had the opening lead, and chose, as a choice of evils, the opening of his fourth best diamond. Dr. Hayes ruffed and returned the spade Knave. This Mr. Whitehead won with the Ace and, hoping against hope that he might find the heart Ace in the West hand, led a trump. Mr. Gerber, however, won with the Ace, led another diamond, which Dr. Hayes ruffed, and returned a spade, which was won by East's King, Mr. Whitehead playing the Queen, and West was then given the opportunity to ruff the third round of diamonds, cashing the high spade for the sixth of the seven first leads.

The hand was therefore defeated 3 tricks, a penalty of 500 points—due to the extraordinary power of a blank suit with five apparently worthless trumps.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a two-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

South Dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♢	Pass	?

What should East bid, holding:

♠ — ♡ J 5 ♢ K 10 9 6 ♣ A K 9 8 6 4 3

Answer: Two spades. Apparently there is a fine chance for game at diamonds or clubs, even if partner's vulnerable. Overcall was a minimum. If partner holds the heart Ace or heart King-Queen, there may easily be a Slam. Therefore it is essential that partner be informed of (1) the missing spade suit, (2) the long club suit, and (3) the diamond support. Hence, the Overcall in opponents' suit to show no losing spades. This is the only Forcing bid available after the opponents have opened the bidding, and will insure East the opportunities to show both the club suit and the diamond support.

Household Hints

A little vinegar will remove paint from windows.

One woman who corresponds with a number of friends has a unique habit that results in very interesting letters for her correspondents. Whenever she reads something that would be of interest she marks on the clipping the initials of the friend and places the clipping in a pigeonhole of her desk. When the time comes for writing, many interesting bits of gossip and truths are ready to be sent and commented upon.

Correct Manners

Wedding Plans

Dear Miss Beeckman:

I am going to be married very informally at the home of our minister in about three weeks at about 8 o'clock in the evening.

As my parents live out of town, we are having a reception at a nearby hotel and we plan to invite about 20 to 25 people. (My fiance and I are paying for this reception.)

The question in our minds is about the invitations. An informal note would be appropriate, would it not? How should it be worded, and should it be written by my mother or me?

G.

Yes, indeed, the informal note of invitation, written by your mother, is the correct and appropriate form in which to invite your friends to this small and informal wedding. As a matter of fact, the formal engraved invitations would be quite out of place.

The note is worded rather like this:

Dear Janet:

Editha and Jack are to be married on Tuesday, the first of June, and after the ceremony at the minister's home, we are planning to have a small and informal gathering of their friends in the Rose Room of the ——— Hotel. We are all eager to have you come, and won't you come in to greet them at about half after eight o'clock, and to wish them "all the happiness in the world?" Do say that you will.

Dearest love from us all.

Cordially yours,

MARY SMITH ROBINSON.

Tipping

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Having made an appointment at a beauty parlor and then having been taken care of by the proprietor of the store, is it proper to tip him or her, and if so, is it proper to tip as much as you would an operator in the shop? ROSE.

Formerly we always took for granted that it was "unbecoming" . . . perhaps this is as good a word as any . . . to give a tip to the proprietor of a beauty shop, but I have noticed that these days seem to have gone with many other kinds of days. Now I haven't noticed that the proprietor shies away from this tip, and it has indeed become a custom to give it. There are a few exceptions, but very few apparently, and these will graciously explain to us their preference as to our not doing this tipping.

And, as a matter of fact, generally the inclination is toward giving the proprietor a larger tip than we would give any other operator in the shop . . . perhaps because we are supposed to get more expert service from this high source!

How to Keep Well

Care of Expectant Mothers

Recently I wrote about May Day and the plans of the American Child Health Association.

Dr. Copeland

You will recall that I spoke of the importance of nutrition in childhood, clean and abundant milk supply, and the health of the expectant mother. Today I want to tell you more about the need of periodic visits to the doctor.

In former times the importance of good health for the expectant mother was overlooked, and this was largely due to the general lack of proper medical attention and hygienic instruction. The midwife preceded the physician, who was called only when complications occurred. That state of affairs no longer exists, but unfortunately too many expectant mothers still neglect to take advantage of the many advances made in the study of obstetrics.

It is now an accepted fact the care which the expectant mother receives influences her future health as well as the health of the child. Periodic visits to the doctor, the hospital clinic or maternity center are imperative. All disturbing symptoms and complaints should be reported to the attending physician. In this way many complications and difficulties are recognized early and are prevented from doing serious damage.

I can think of nothing more important than regular and frequent examinations of the urine. This examination will often detect kidney trouble which, if neglected, can prove to be serious. A specimen should be examined once a month for the first six months, and every two weeks thereafter.

Every expectant mother should have a complete physical examination. This should be made early, preferably before the fourth month. From then on, the patient should report at least once a month to the physician. At each examination advice as to the diet will be given, measurements take and the blood pressure tested.

The clothing should be comfortable and loose fitting. After the fourth month it is advisable to wear clothing that hangs from the shoulders and not from the waist. Tight, round, elastic garters, as well as snug belts, collars and shoes should be avoided. Severe and annoying backache can be prevented by wearing low heeled and loosely fitting shoes.

There is some difference in opinion as to the need of a maternity corset. Its use depends entirely upon the individual case. To some it brings satisfaction and comfort.

Report promptly to your physician all signs and changes in your general health. Severe nauses, vomiting, headache, spots before the eyes, swelling of the hands or legs and hemorrhage require immediate medical attention. Remember that early recognition of disturbing changes will prevent many complications and difficulties.

Modern Cervantes Held World's Need

NEW YORK, June 6 — (INS) — Society today needs the cheerful laugh of a Cervantes to loosen the purses and lighten the hearts of the dollar worshipers, Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of New York University told the graduating classes of 1932 in his baccalaureate address, Brown asserted.

"The portentous solemnity with which our people bow down to this worship is tragic beyond words but it is also unutterably absurd. It calls for caricature, satire, the sheer fun of Wonderland."

MINERS' MARCH POSTPONED

A proposed march by striking miners on the Pittsburgh Coal Company's No. 10 mine at Library, to induce workers there to join in an unofficial strike was postponed yesterday. Several meetings were held near the mines by the National Miners Union and the United Mine Workers of America.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company has reached a wage agreement with its miners whose resumption of work is being protested by workers of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company. The Terminal miners quit work June 1 rather than accept a wage cut.

District officials of the United Mine Workers plan to resume negotiations with Terminal executives, including Samuel Pursglove, president, this afternoon.

3RD CONGRESS HOUSE URGED

A third house of Congress, one of technology, is advocated by Dr. John W. Oliver, head of the history department of the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Oliver said a check of the important measures before the last three Congresses reveals that well over 50 per cent of the bills and resolutions introduced refer to problems of a scientific-technical nature. He said:

"A new type of statesmanship is now demanded in our government. There was a time when we were chiefly concerned with building up the state, laying its foundations, and interpreting its constitution. A third house of technologists is now needed properly to interpret the technical age in which we are living."

Bright young man wanted to run Eighth avenue subway in New York City. No experience necessary.

This is the new underground slave route from home to the factory. It has been finished over a year and has been a playground for Mickey Mouse and his pals.

Here is a good chance for a college graduate. The sub costs taxpayers twenty-two thousand a day. And no matter how badly you run it you can't do any worse than that.

The thing is completely furnished with tracks, rolling stock and kitchenette.

But nary a car has run through it since Gen. Grant bit the end off his last cigar.

Boys, here's a chance for you to make good under the big city. If you only lose twenty thousand a day that will be an improvement for the taxpayers. They'll give you the other two thousand as a bonus for meritorious service.

AWAIT ACTION ON FRANKLIN SUNDAY SHOW

Performance Held With Paid Admissions Meets No Interference; Up to Council

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 6.—(AP.)—Franklin had Sunday "movies" on a paid admission basis last night after two "invitation only" shows had been held on previous Sundays. A show starting at 8:45 o'clock, was uneventful.

At a meeting today Council was to consider what is to be done about the violation of Pennsylvania's "blue laws" of 1794.

Mayor H. C. Ferringer and Councilman Lester Harrison already are on record against Sunday shows. Three other councilmen have not announced their views.

Four hundred communicants of the First Presbyterian Church protested yesterday against the Sunday entertainment. At the conclusion of morning services, Sunday school classes adopted similar resolutions.

L. T. Houghton, manager of the theater, had announced previously that he wanted to test the "blue laws." He said the time he has chosen for the performances will not interfere with church services.

An ordinance fixing a penalty of $300 fine or 90 days in jail for violations of the laws forbidding Sunday shows was passed on first and second readings at a special meeting of City Council Friday. It was to come up for final passage today.

MAN LEAPS OUT WINDOW

Christopher Hett, 23, of 1432 Nixon street, North Side, plunged headlong from a second story window early today, following an argument over a scorched shirt with his stepbrother, according to homicide detectives. He fell 18 feet.

The stepbrother, Paul Werner, 18, was being held in Woods Run Police Station on a suspicious person charge.

Werner told detectives he and Hett had words over a shirt scorched while being ironed. During the argument, Hett tossed the shirt out of the window, pushed Werner and then jumped.

Hett will be questioned by police when he recovers consciousness.

AIR RAID TALK STIRS LONDON

LONDON, June 6.—(AP.)—A controversy arose today over a radio broadcast last Saturday night of a description of war-time Zeppelin raids on London. The description was given by the former German commander who led the attacks.

Capt. Lieut. De Joachim Breithaupt, whose raids won the Iron Cross, told vividly how and where bombs from his ship landed on metropolitan area. He said:

"Some people may think this talk is adding insult to injury, but I don't wish to hurt your feelings."

The Daily Express said P. J. H. Hannon, Conservative member of Parliament, would lodge a protest in the Commons.

The News Chronicle said it was rather insensitive of the British Broadcasting Corporation to put the talk on the air and "bluntly stupid" of the commander to deliver it.

The Sunday Express said the "gallant commander" dropped 30 bombs on London during October, 1915, killing 39 persons and injuring 87. Relatives of those killed in the raids, the newspaper added, listened to the broadcast with a mental agony.

THIEF DODGES 20 POLICE

City detectives today were seeking a robber who yesterday noon held up a small store in Wylie avenue, fled with 20 policemen in pursuit and escaped by dodging through the crowded lobby of the William Penn Hotel into the basement and up one of the many stairways.

The robbery was in the store of John Horiatis, 604 Wylie avenue, less than two blocks from the City-County Building, where a large detail of police had been mobilized Sunday morning to await the bonus marchers.

He fled with Horiatis shouting behind him, which caused 20 policemen to take up the chase.

Two armed men obtained $12 from the cash register of the Sun Oil Company station, 1300 West Carson street. The attendant, William Galus, 16, was threatened, he said.

Anna Krest, 1410 Pennsylvania avenue, reported to police that a man who had lived in her boarding house, disappeared as she missed a ring valued at $150 and a watch valued at $10.

SPEAKER TWITS COLLEGE REDS

Radicalism among college students was called "sophomore enthusiasm" by Dr. Frank Pierrepont Graves, Commissioner of Education for New York State, who spoke today to 52 members of the graduating class of Pennsylvania College for Women. He said:

"There is nothing particularly wrong with having these so-called Socialists and Communists on our college campuses. We have had these radical students for the past 40 years. We have them because we have social problems."

In speaking of economic conditions, Dr. Graves declared:

"There is no use in blinking at the seriousness of the situation, but if the people could get over the fear they have, we would find that there was nothing to be afraid of."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., June 6.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The Senate voted a 10 per cent cut in government civilians' wages. Surprised they didn't vote themselves a raise. Chili is the first country to return to normalcy. Saturday they had two dictators and one president, and returned the country to the Democrats. The Crown Prince is trying to get back in power in Germany. A man has either got to be conceited or "looney" to purposely want to be the head of any country nowadays.

Congress is working fast now, so they can attend the convention, and the payers of the tax can attend the poorhouse.

Yours,

WILL.

ARCHITECTURAL EXHIBITION AT INSTITUTE

By PENELOPE REDD

The visitor to the exhibition of "Modern Architecture" at Carnegie Institute who is not prepared for this photographic synopsis of the first decade of the "International style" will almost certainly be confused. Experiments in architectural [illegible] ments are [illegible] is inclined [illegible] than to [illegible] reasons [illegible] the new [illegible] are comparatively few.

What [illegible] however, [illegible] cal distinction [illegible] new idiom [illegible] structed [illegible] countries [illegible] and in Japan.

USE GOVERNS DESIGN

Use [illegible] the nearly [illegible] structures [illegible] the time spirit. Factories and skyscrapers appear monumentally powerful in their unpretentious functionalism. The Philadelphia Saving Fund Society Building by Howe and Lescaze [illegible] articulates this principle.

The most impressive exhibits at Carnegie Institute are the well-organized photographs of housing. One need not be a sociologist to accept the fact that architects must design multiple dwellings for reasonable rental returns. Probably [illegible] will be one in which the international style will be most readily adapted. None of those shown in the exhibit were integrated with architectural units as is Ingham and Boyd's Chatham Village in Pittsburgh.

SINGLE HOUSES

In the case of the many single houses exhibited at the institute, one cannot determine their livability without data on the climate, the continuous or sporadic occupation of the domicile and the social habits of the residents.

This skepticism is based on first-hand knowledge of the disadvantages encountered in a house of Frank Lloyd Wright's early period, since these modern houses in Europe are in large measure born of the earlier American designs of Frank Lloyd Wright, one could not indorse them without trial.

By and large, it is a good idea to educate the public in the [illegible] of a new style, just as they are asked to inspect radical advances in motor car production. The exhibition will close June 24.

HOSPITALS SEEN CLOSING IN AID CRISIS

Lack of State Assistance To Cause Shutdown In Institutions, Leader Says

Many smaller hospitals in Western Pennsylvania will be forced to turn out their patients and close their doors if the 25 per cent cut in the state appropriations is carried out, Miss Jessie J. Turnbull, president of the Pittsburgh Hospital Conference warned today.

Miss Turnbull's warning was contained in an open letter signed by her and representing the 30 members of the Conference. She said:

"The 30 hospitals in our Conference, which receive state aid, were allotted $772,850 a year from the state. The proposed cut of 24.16 per cent will cost them $186,720—this on top of $1,260,880 which the hospitals themselves, or their friends, have had to obtain.

CITES BIG DEFICIT

"Their deficit already, since last June, has been $458,000 and if the hospitals have to suffer for the Talbot bill, that deficit will amount to more than $645,000.

"The chief reason for the deficit was the provision by the 30 hospitals alone of 628,522 free days at a cost of $2,033,720. Most persons believe the hospitals are reimbursed in full for free work, the entire state appropriation to these institutions amounted to only $772,850.

"In times like these hospitals find themselves powerless. Operating economies must find a limit on the line bordering good hospital care. Patient revenues have shrunk. A majority of those who do go are unable to pay their way. Free care has quadrupled, the result being larger deficits.

HOSPITALS SUFFER

"When the Talbot bill was declared constitutional and $10,000,000 became available for direct relief to Pennsylvania's unemployed, no one dreamed that part of that fund would be deducted from hospital funds.

"The state pays ordinarily 23 per cent of the cost of free cases admitted, and the rest—including all dispensary work for thousands of people who never get into the hospitals—is borne by the hospitals themselves.

"Now, if this meager amount of state help is to be cut still further at a time when hospital supporters and administrators are at their wits' end to make ends meet, what is going to be the direct effect?

"State appropriations to hospitals are made biennially—that is, for two years—at so much per quarter. Part of the present biennium is already past. The hospitals have received and disbursed several quarters of their state revenue. If the cut forced by the Talbot bill is retroactive to last January 1, as Gov. Pinchot has warned, then it must be obvious that the whole strain of the 25 per cent reduction will fall upon the remaining quarterly payments.

NEEDS GREATER

That means that the balance of hospital aid will be cut much more than 25 per cent with the relief loan growing greater.

"The positions of the hospitals—and they believe that position sound—is that the relief job they are doing belongs in the Talbot bill just as much as any welfare or work.

"The hospitals feel it their duty to warn law-makers and citizens alike that the cut will prove little short of disastrous. Hospital aid should be increased. The hospitals appeal to the special session of the Legislature to see to it that at least the appropriation is not cut."

Several thousand devotees of church music came to Pitt Stadium yesterday afternoon to hear the combined choruses of many choirs from the tri-state district.

Mr. Lissfelt

As an open air auditorium for great musical festivals this field proved a success, and as for the singing the audience, although it joined in singing many of the hymns, was so impressed by the beauty of the service that it spontaneously and joyfully applauded.

The Ukrainian choir came in costume and added a bright touch of color to the procession. It sang alone an entire group of famed folk songs with verve and much shading. Konstantyn Orlyk directed.

Dr. John Finley Williamson, of the Westminster Choir, directed the combined choruses with real success. Across the field there was no alarming echo and the tone was remarkably full and distinct. Particularly effective was the junior choir in the Netherland Folk Tune.

The following were the participating choirs: Allegheny Valley Choral Society, Combined Lutheran Group, Homestead Combined Choirs, McKeesport Combined Choirs, Methodist Church, Duquesne; United Brethren Church, Wilkinsburg; St. Stephen's, Sewickley; Peabody High School, Central Christian Church, Uniontown; Glenshaw Presbyterian, Ukrainian National Chorus, East End Christian Church, Westinghouse Glee Club, Christian Church, Lisbon, O.; Wilson Presbyterian, Homestead Band, Allegheny Chorus Society, Charleroi and Connellsville choirs.

Frank Kennedy and Sigrid Gayvert were accompanists.

TEN ARRESTED IN MINE CLASH

WHEELING, W. Va., June 6.—(AP.)—Several shots were fired and 10 men arrested in an outbreak at the Triadelphia mine of the Elm Grove Mining Company last night.

State police, detectives and others who answered a riot call broke up the disturbance. One of the shots passed through a filling station nearby. No one was injured.

The outbreak followed an attack on John Gantzer, fire boss at the mine, where a strike is in progress. He was attacked and beaten by a group of men as he waited for a bus.

About 100 strikers visited the mine last night to attack workers, officials said. Four of the arrested men are mine employes and six are pickets. All were held under bail for arraignment today.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

SCHOLARSHIPS GIVEN TO 10 STUDENTS

Accounting Courses Awarded To Graduates of High Schools by Foundation

Ten recent graduates from high schools of the Pittsburgh district have been awarded scholarships for the term of 1932-33 under the provisions of the scholarship foundation at Pittsburgh School of Accountancy.

These awards are an annual feature of the well-known downtown institution, giving the entire tuition for a year's freshman work. The total value of these prizes is therefore $1,500.

LOCAL BOYS CHOSEN

Over 100 high schools in Western Pennsylvania were eligible to nominate their candidates. After carefully considering the scholastic records of these nominees two local boys and eight others were finally selected.

Howard Kennedy of 147 Benton avenue, North Side, a senior at D. B. Oliver High School, had the highest score of all applicants, while Ray W. Bussler, South Side High School graduate, was close at his heels, living at 518 Beltzhoover avenue, the second.

STUDENTS AIDED

By confining their prizes of concretes to giving deserving students in this way, the Pittsburgh School of Accountancy has been able to get many young men started in business administration and accountancy, many students who otherwise might never have begun.

MANY WASHERS SOLD IN '31

Reports of the American Washing Machine Manufacturers' Association show that 1931 was an exceptional year for their output.

The new development has come about, according to the secretary of the association, through the adoption of home laundering as a measure of economy by families which have never before seen the necessity of keeping so careful a curb upon household expenditures. Of 8,800,000 electric washers now in use in this country one-tenth were installed in 1931.

Woods Agency Beats 1931 Group Record

The Edward A. Woods Company, general agents for the Equitable Life Assurance Society in this district, reports sales of $9,961,957 in group insurance alone for the month of May, bringing the total group sales for the first five months to $16,021,709. This is an increase of more than $2,000,000 over the total group insurance placed by the agency in the entire year of 1931. The record was made possible by extensions to several large group contracts including the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, West Penn Electric Company and the Quaker State Oil Refining Corporation of Oil City.

Wholesale and Jobbing Trade Conditions

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—Tabloid review of wholesale and retail business conditions and the state of crops as reported to Bradstreet's this week from the following centers on the basis of comparisons with conditions in the same areas in the corresponding week last year:

	Whole. and Job. Trade	Retail Trade	Mfg. and Industry	Collections	Crops
Pittsburgh	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow	Good
Chicago	Fair	Fair	Quiet	Fair	Fair
Cleveland	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow	Good

Omaha	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow	Fair
St. Louis	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow	Good

National Closing Unprofitable Units

CHICAGO, June 6.—National Tea Company has closed during the past 12 months approximately 90 low volume, unprofitable stores, according to F. H. Massman, vice president of the company. Material reductions in operating costs have been effected and merchandise turnover has been increased.

FORMAN TRUST REORGANIZES

CHICAGO, June 6.—Progress in handling four Chicago apartment buildings was reported today by the George M. Forman Realty Trust, organized to protect the interests of investors in 29 Chicago, Cleveland and New York City apartment and hotel properties.

The trust has more than 8,000 bondholders in all parts of the United States.

William G. Lodwick, president of the trust, said:

"Bonds of the Hilldale apartments deposited with the trust or under its control have reached a total of 89.9 per cent of all outstanding bonds of the North and South Fountain View apartments, twin buildings, 97.4 and 95.5 per cent, respectively, and the Oakwyn Building, 96.9 per cent."

The buildings were financed with George M. Forman & Co., 6½ per cent bond issues aggregating $900,000, of which $710,500 remains outstanding, all defaulted as to interest and principal. The trust issued income bonds to the depositors of Forman company bonds and paid interest January 1, 1932, to co-operating bondholders. It contemplates a similar payment July 1.

DEALERS BUILD PUBLIC BOND INTEREST

Leading Houses Campaign To Increase Demand for Better Grade Securities

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Entirely apart from the bank-sponsored plan to form the new American Securities Investing Corporation for the purpose of buying prime bonds, a number of leading bond houses throughout the country are already at work to enliven public interest in present investment opportunities.

The plan has the support of high officials of the American Investment Bankers' Association who say America has sufficiently recovered from the frenzied speculative craze of 1929 to sit down sanely and study investment values on their merits rather than their chances of attracting pool activity to boost prices.

In 1929, these authorities say, buyers were not interested in the rate of income a bond would return. They wanted to know if the bond was going up. As a result most bonds sold then were of speculative flavor. In the words of some bankers, they were tied up with bright ribbon in the form of stock purchase warrants which would give the buyer of a bond a chance to buy some speculative stock so long as he owned the bond.

SAFETY IMPORTANT

Today these authorities report, America has become old-fashioned. Investors are thinking of safety of principal first, income second, and chance of price appreciation third.

As a means of strengthening this growing conviction that sound investment standards provide the best guide in purchasing securities, leading bond houses have taught their salesmen to specialize in studying the merits of bonds which are already listed and have been actively traded in on the New York Stock Exchange. They are not schooling the salesmen much on prospective new bond issues for this or the other company, and they have turned their backs almost completely on foreign bonds.

Alden H. Little, executive vice president of the Investment Bankers' Association, recently called attention of his fellow members to present bond prices which, he said, appear to bear little or no true relation to values, present or future. He advised bond houses to quit fretting about the dearth of new issues, but to get busy and market gilt edge bonds of long market standing which are now priced at bargain levels.

PRICES DROP

In the last year, the value of all listed bonds on the stock exchange has depreciated some $10,000,000,000. On June 1, 1931, their market valuation was $47,629,000,000, including United States government, foreign government and all corporate bond issues. On May 1, last, they were valued at $38,896,000,000, and the June 1 tabulation, when it appears, will show a still lower total.

Refrigerator Sales Gain During April

NEW YORK, June 6.—A tabulation of the sales of electric refrigerators in Pennsylvania during the first four months of the year, made by the Electric Refrigeration Bureau of the National Electric Light Association, shows an unusually heavy increase in volume in April. More than 14,000 domestic units were installed in the state during the month, this figure being only 3,000 under the total sales in the three preceding months. At the close of April the Pennsylvania dealers had sold 102.5 per cent of their quota for the four months period in the national sales campaign sponsored by the Electric Refrigeration Bureau. An even million sales is the bureau's objective for 1932.

Association Joins National League

The Eagle Building and Loan Association, 125 Brownsville road, was admitted to membership recently in the United States Building and Loan League, according to H. F. Cellarius, secretary-treasurer of the league.

BUSINESS

Steel Industry Makes Progress in Improving Prospects for Future

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE STEEL INDUSTRY has made definite progress toward improving its prospects although it is unlikely that this will be reflected to any great extent in the income accounts for the second quarter of the present year.

There are few chances in sight for increased operation during the summer. Executives of most steel companies are looking toward September for the first indications of a general recovery in volume. If better demand does not develop by that time, it probably will be delayed until the early months of 1933 since the steel trade almost invariably is inactive at the close of a year.

The mills are being helped by increased buying from Ford, but other consumers are reducing their purchases so that output has shown only minor variations during the past month. It is generally believed that a gradual recession will take place during July, which may carry output from its present rate of about 23 per cent of capacity down below the 20 per cent level.

* * *

Industry Succeeds in Stabilizing Prices

ATTEMPTS TO STABILIZE prices have been successful. Quotations on semi-finished material have been advanced in some cases. Plans to announce advances in some of the finished lines have been discussed. It is uncertain whether or not these additional advances will actually be put in effect.

The check in the long down swing of prices represents one of the most favorable developments of the past two years. But stopping price shading does not increase earnings. It merely prevents increased losses and lays a foundation for future advances as business recovers.

* * *

Losses to Show Little Change

THE RECENTLY announced wage and salary cuts are helping the steel industry at present but they have not been in effect for the entire second quarter. The volume of business recently has been lower than the average for the first quarter, so that steel companies are unlikely to make any more favorable showings in their income accounts for the second quarter than they did in the first.

Seasonal precedent and current inquiries indicate that the third quarter will have a slow start, although some improvement may be shown later. This indicates that little can be hoped for elimination of operating losses in the steel industry before the fourth quarter of the year.

COPPER MARKET FIRMS UP

NEW YORK, June 6.—Copper was firmer late in the week when it became known that the conference tax bill introduced in both houses of Congress contained a 4 per cent import duty on copper, allowing for importation of 15,000 tons annually duty free for fluxing purposes. Metal at the record low price of 5¼ cents, was withdrawn and some domestic sales were reported at 5⅜ cents, while some producers were asking ¼ cent higher.

After remaining quiet and steady, buying of tin improved somewhat late in the week reflecting partly increased operations of tin plate mills and a more cheerful tone in financial markets.

Some of the participating countries are said to have approved the recently proposed international curtailment.

Lead also experienced a better call for prompt as well as July and August shipment.

Zinc eased slightly after the recent sharp advance owing to restricted consuming demand following the first spurt of covering. The ore market, however, held firm.

TRADE VOLUME SHOWS NO CHANGE

Business Remains Stable After Three Months of Dullness, Survey Says

NEW YORK, June 6.—The general level of production and trade, such as it is, has not shown any marked change in the past three months, after allowing for usual seasonal factors, says the Business Week. A similar stability during the spring period was evident in the two preceding years, but business was then at a much higher level, and the possibilities of further decline from the present position would seem to be considerably smaller.

PRICES FALL

Commodity prices are still falling, but more slowly and with some scattered signs of stabilization in specific instances. Financial sentiment has been somewhat steadied by speedier congressional action on fiscal issues, but is nervous about prospective European political developments.

Although Federal Reserve efforts to stimulate speedy credit expansion have been ineffective, and are marking time, improvement in the banking position continues steadily, as short-term funds pile up in money centers pending return of investment confidence.

SENSE RETURNS

No one can say what additional lolts to business and financial sentiment the merry month of June may hold in store at home or overseas, but the jittering capacity of the public would seem to be approaching exhaustion, and a cyclical return of common sense about due to set in as soon as Congress adjourns and the political pandemonium of the campaign is past.

The indicators are, as usual, slow to reflect the improvement in sentiment. The preliminary reading of the Business Week Index for the week ending May 28 is 56.8, which compares with a revised reading of 57.1 for the previous week. The index registered 78.8 for the seven days period ending May 30, 1931.

U. S. Leather Plans Capital Adjustment

NEW YORK, June 6.—A special meeting of stockholders of the United States Leather Company has been called for June 29 to approve the reduction in the capital to $20,253,652 through retirement of 83,178 shares of 7 per cent prior preferred stock, which has been acquired by the company.

MEINE BRIGHTENS OUTLOOK FOR TRIP

THE WASHING OUT OF the game scheduled for yesterday in Chicago, after a special trip by the Pirates and Cubs to the Windy City, means that both clubs will have to start the first eastern invasion tomorrow under the handicap of having spent three straight nights on railroad trains without getting a bit of action for all their riding. If Sunday baseball were not prohibited in Pennsylvania, that trip would not have been necessary.

Heinie Meine

Apart from any harmful effects the three nights of travel may have, the Pirates face the 17-game trip starting at Philadelphia tomorrow with bright prospects. The club has won 15 out of 21 games in capturing six straight series and rising to third place, and the fine showing of Heinie Meine in his first start Saturday makes the situation all the more encouraging by rounding out the slab staff with another winning pitcher. The attack continues to be all that could be desired. In this respect, President W. E. Benswanger, who overlooks nothing in a ball game, calls attention to a couple of unusual performances in Saturday's offensive. No fewer than 27 Pirates reached first base in eight innings, and in the sixth frame five consecutive batters got on in five different ways—a single, a double, a triple, a home run and a base on balls, though not in that order.

BY NO MEANS the least of the baseball veterans to bob up suddenly after years in retirement and obscurity is your old friend, Ham Hyatt. The former pinch slugger of the Pirates, who dropped out of sight many seasons ago, has been chosen to manage as well as play for one of the teams in an old-timers' game at Seattle.

One team is to be made up of vets from all over the state of Washington, and the other will be composed of old-timers residing in the city of Seattle. Hyatt is to handle the all-state club, with Pug Bennett or Bill Hurley directing the Seattle outfit. One of the veterans slated to appear is Amos Rusie.

THOUGH NEVER A wonder in speed or fielding ability, Hyatt carried a punch that kept him on the Pirate payroll, mainly for pinch-hitting duty, from 1909 to 1914, inclusive. His emergency wallops turned the tide in many a game and caused him to be dubbed by the late Charley Dryden as "Fred Clarke's disappearing gun." Ham would come up to bat for somebody, sock one against the fence, step aside for a pinch runner and leave the park.

Hyatt left one of baseball's classics behind him when he passed out. Referring to the system of keeping him out of the game in favor of players who were faster on the sacks he emitted the famous mouthful, "you ain't steal first base."

DURING HIS REIGN of 30 years as manager of the Giants, beaten only as a major league record by the career of Connie Mack, now in his thirty-second season at the head of the A's, John McGraw saw a small army of pilots come and go in the National League. While McGraw was putting in three decades as the lone leader of the New York team, the other clubs in the senior circuit employed a total of 79 managers. Brooklyn used the smallest number, six, and Pittsburgh was next with nine. Chicago had 11; St. Louis, Cincinnati and Philadelphia, 13 each, and Boston, 14.

Burt Shotton

WITH McGRAW AND Wilbert Robinson gone, the distinction of having managed the club he is now leading longer than any other National League skipper has occupied his present berth passes to Burt Shotton, of the Phillies, who took charge of that outfit in 1928.

In total years of managerial service, the real dean of National League pilots is Bill McKechnie, who worked four and a half seasons at the Pirate helm, one and a half with the Cards and is now in his third campaign with the Braves. But for length of service in present connections, Shotton antedates McKechnie and all the rest, being in his fifth straight season.

THOUGH HE LED the St. Louis Browns for three seasons, Dan Howley is in only his third year in the National as boss of the Reds. Rogers Hornsby managed the Cards for almost two seasons and the Braves in 1929, but this is only his second as general of the Cubs.

George Gibson previously directed the Bucs for two and a half years, and the Cubs for a short time, but his present engagement here is in only its first season. Gabby Street, like McKechnie in Boston, is in his third year at the head of the Cards, and it's Max Carey's first campaign as Dodger chieftain.

THE OLYMPIC VILLAGE, so far as the United States postal service is concerned, is now officially on the map, though it does not yet have any residents. The first piece of mail directed to the new international settlement in Los Angeles was received a few days ago. It was a roll of newspapers, addressed to the Indian Olympic team and mailed from Calcutta. India's team is scheduled to land at San Francisco Wednesday.

IT IS EXPECTED that the sensational shot put of 52 feet, 8½ inches, made recently by Herman Brix, of the Los Angeles A. C., will be officially recognized as a new world record. District A. A. U. leaders who were present certify that the mark was official in every way.

Brix's put was slightly more than one inch better than the present recognized world record of 52 feet, 7½ inches, set by Emil Hirschfeld, of Germany, and tied by Brix last year. Brix is confident of making 54 feet in the Olympics.

THE VALUE OF a live, active and experienced tennis professional as a force in the promotion of the game in a district is incalculable. Julius Boise, veteran instructor at the Allegheny Country Club, is an excellent case in point. He has not stopped at developing the games of a flock of racqueters in that region, in which respect Sam Harbison and Charley Lockhart, Princeton stars, are recent notable examples of his handiwork.

Julius Boise

Boise has extended the sphere of his activities beyond his own club by spending much of his free time with the Duquesne University squad and offering to the green Bluffites the benefit of his knowledge of the pastime—all without compensation. Colleges, strangely, while spending large sums for coaching in football, basketball, track, rowing and other sports, make little provision for the two games in which graduates are able to indulge through life after leaving the campus—tennis and golf.

BOISE IS NOT content to forget tennis when he hangs up his racquet after a day of coaching. His fondness for the game moves him to dope out any number of constructive suggestions for its benefit, and leads given by him to officials of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association have been responsible for several of the recent forward strides of the organization. His active encouragement of the proposal to organize interclub play for women undoubtedly contributed to the plan for the inauguration of such competition among members of the Allegheny Country Club, the Fox Chapel Golf Club and the Edgeworth Club. Boise is ever ready to give of his time and service for the promotion of the sport. Pittsburgh tennis is fortunate in having a man of Boise's caliber and world-wide net contacts. He is in truth one of that fast disappearing type of sports figures—a professional with the heart and spirit of the ideal amateur.

Tonight it's Midget Wolgast, the flyweight champion at least in Pennsylvania and New York. He tops off a card against Tony Marino, Duquesne mite, in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock.

Midget Wolgast

First we had Tony Canzoneri and Johnny Jadick. Then Jackie Fields was matched against Ted Yarosz in a fight that didn't come off. Next we'll see Maxie Rosenbloom and Kid Chocolate and Billy Petrolle who ought to be a champion, but isn't.

Gosh, when are we going to see an honest-to-goodness plain palooka fighter again? The good, old-fashioned kind that used to entertain us in the days B. C. (before champions)?

ALL-STAR PROGRAM

The Bowl is taking the curse off its bout involving a champion by giving us three other 10-rounders on the same bill. Tony Herrera meets Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, in one of them. Jack Kilbourne returns against Angel Cliville, in another, and Marty Gornick takes on Ray Collins in the other one. So if you don't go in for champions, you'll have something else to look at.

It's a well-balanced card and ought to bring out a lot of plain and fancy boxing and biffing. That Kilbourne-Cliville thing figures to be a sockfest and the best fight on the program. Both are hitters and each broke in here with a knockout victory.

Herrera is an old favorite. He lost his last match here with Lew Massey when he weakened himself making the weight, and he'll be debuting as a welterweight tonight. Gornick has developed into a great two-fisted puncher and may stop his man, who holds a win over him.

TOUGH SPOT FOR TONY

Marino is in a peculiar spot. Making his first start in a main bout in his home sector, aside from a few windup billings in McKeesport, he's in with the champion of his class. That's a quick and sudden leap. The Midget promises to be too fast and shifty and ringwise for him, but he can't punch, and Tony has a chance to make a showing. A little more seasoning before being handed such an assignment wouldn't have hurt Tony, but now he's in there and he'll have to make the most of his opportunity.

Because of the length of tonight's bill, the first bout will go on promptly at 8:30.

Workmen will begin today the task of converting Greenlee Field, the city's newest baseball park, into its newest boxing arena for

HELEN ANNEXES FRENCH TITLE

AUTEUIL, France, June 6.—(AP.)—Helen Wills Moody has completed the first lap of her tennis drive toward all three of the world's major women's singles championships.

She won the French title in Roland Garros Stadium yesterday, brushing aside Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, 7-5, 6-1, thus completing her brilliant march through Europe's best without the loss of a set.

Now Mrs. Moody will seek the British title at Wimbledon, starting June 20, and then will defend her American championship at Forest Hills later in the year.

The men's singles final, between Henri Cochet and George de Stefani, was to be held today, with the French star an overwhelming favorite. Cochet beat his countryman, Marcel Bernard, in the semi-finals yesterday, while the Italian conquered Roderich Menzel, of Czechoslovakia.

Walker and Jones Booked for Benefit

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP.)—Mayor James J. Walker announced today he had accepted the offer of Bobby Jones to play in an exhibition golf match on June 26 at the Fresh Meadow Club, the proceeds to go to New York City's unemployed.

The National Open championship tournament, in which Jones will not take part, will end at the Fresh Meadow Club on Saturday, June 25. The Mayor said today that in the exhibition match the following day Jones probably will be paired with Tommy Armour against Gene Sarazen and Billy Burke, present National Open champion.

Sam Parks, Jr., of the Summit Club, Uniontown, making his playing debut as a professional, shot a 37-36—73 to tie Ted Luther for the lead at the end of 18 holes in the National Open qualifying round at Oakmont today. His card:

By TOM KIRKS

Luther, one of the very few favorites to measure up to expectations, was out in 38, one over par, and then matched par 35 on the homeward journey to gain a lead of two strokes over his nearest rival, Paul (Toots) Erath, Edgewood pro, who posted 39-36—75.

Tied at 76 in fourth place were Edmond Onoretta, Schenley Park public links product; Joe C. Ludes, of Oakmont, and Rader Jewett, of Wheeling, W. Va.

Rockne Family Visits Scene Of Tragedy

STRONG CITY, Kan., June 6.—(AP.)—The family of Knute Rockne, late Notre Dame football coach, yesterday bowed in prayer before a prairie boulder which honors his memory.

The stone was erected by S. H. Baker, owner of a pasture in which a transport plane, upon which Rockne was a passenger, crashed March 31, 1931. The coach and other occupants of the ship were killed. The pasture is near Bazaar, Kan.

Mrs. Rockne was accompanied on her pilgrimage by her daughter, Mary Jeanne, and three sons, Jack, Bill and Knute, Jr. The latter two boys are students in a Kansas City school. The party came here from Kansas City.

KNIGHTS WIN IN SLUGFEST

The Beckley Black Knights and the Clarksburg Generals put on a slugging act in the Middle Atlantic League at Beckley yesterday, the Knights winning a 20-to-8 ball game, in which 24 safe hits were struck. The hit list included three doubles, four triples and one home run.

At Huntington, the Boosters bumped Johnstown from the league lead by defeating the Johnnies, 9 to 4. The Boosters scored six runs in the ninth to win.

Charleston took the final game of the series with Cumberland, 7 to 6. The Senators got off to an early lead and managed to hold an advantage despite late rallies by the Colts.

YANKEES GET MACFAYDEN

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—The New York Yankees' hopes of winning the American League pennant perked up considerably today as the result of the acquisition of one pitcher they wanted quite badly in exchange for two who were not doing them much good.

In a last minute deal before they start on their trip West, the Yanks received Danny MacFayden from the Boston Red Sox in a trade for Henry Johnson and Ivy Paul Andrews. Although no other consideration was mentioned officially, it was believed they handed over a good amount of cash as well.

MacFayden, who will be 27 years old this week and who wears spectacles on the mound, is rated as one of the American League's best right-handers. He has won only one game for the weak-hitting Red Sox this season and has lost 10, but last year he turned in 16 victories, more than one-fourth of the games his team won.

Local Swim Star To Give Exhibition

Miss Lenore Kight, of the Homestead Library, leading local contender for Olympic swimming honors, will give a demonstration of her prowess at Central Branch Y. W. C. A. today at 5:30 o'clock.

On Wednesday evening, at 6:55, Miss Kight will participate with Johnny Weissmuller, famous swimming star, and her coach, Jack Sears, in the weekly sports broadcast of the Trained Seals of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE.

U. S. ACES CARD 73S IN BRITISH OPEN GOLF

SANDWICH, England, June 6.—(AP.)—A. R. Bradbeer, little-known professional from Somerset, today led a fine international field, including three ranking American players, in the first round of qualifying play of the British Open golf championship, with a par-challenging 76.

Bradbeer finished with the late players over the par 72 St. George's course to lead Arthur Havers, British winner in 1923 and the last Briton to hold the title, by one stroke.

Gene Sarazen, MacDonald Smith and Tommy Armour, defending champion, the three leading American hopes, were tied up in the run. Sarazen and Mac Smith with 77s and Armour with a 75.

SEVERAL AHEAD OF YANKS

Today's qualifying rounds were played both at St. George's and Prince's, the latter where the tournament proper will start Wednesday. Sarazen, Mac Smith and Havers playing their fine rounds over the more difficult tournament course, where par is 74. Armour played at St. George's with Bradbeer.

It was a great day for the British golfers with such old favorites as Ted Ray with a 73, Abe Mitchell with a like score, Ernest Kenyon, Tom Dodson and Fred Taggart with 72s, and Duncan McCulloch with a 76 more than holding their own with the invading Americans where the title has gone 10 of the last 11 years.

EQUALS COURSE RECORD

Havers' 71 at Prince's equaled Jock Hutchinson's record for the course. He was two under fours on the first nine of one of England's most difficult golf tests. Havers' card:

Out . . . . 4 4 3 5 4 4 4 4 4—36
In . . . . 4 4 3 4 4 4 3 5 4—35—71

Sarazen was out in 37 and back in 36. His faultless putting and perfect control of the ball against a high wind on the fairways kept his score down. He took only 33 putts for the 18 holes. His card:

Out . . . . 4 4 3 4 4 4 4 5 5—37
In . . . . 4 4 3 4 4 4 4 5 4—36—73

Several hundred persons were in the gallery which followed Mac Smith, a favorite with the British public. One of the few Americans still playing with wood shafts in the clubs, he gave a fine show of effortless golf. On his round he holed three long putts, one of 40 feet at the eighteenth, where he was in a bunker with his mashie approach and had to explode out. His card:

Out . . . . 5 4 3 5 4 4 4 4 5—38
In . . . . 4 4 4 3 4 4 4 5 5—37—75

ARMOUR CARDS 75

Armour had his usual mastery over his irons and showed the natives as fine shot-making with them as they have ever seen. His only bad hole on the round was the seventh, where he misjudged the wind and saw his third shot sail far over the green. He finally was down in 6. His card:

Out . . . . 4 4 3 4 4 4 4 5 4—36
In . . . . 4 4 4 3 4 4 3 5 4—35—71

Other American entrants did not fare particularly well. Walter Pursey, Seattle pro, had an 81, and Gordon Smith, of Palm Beach, carded an 88. Joshua Crane, Brookline amateur, was well back in the field with an 89, and Ellsworth Augustus, Cleveland amateur, scratched. Paul Azbill, American playing from an English club, scored an 83, as did Frank Sweeny, brother of Robert.

MOON RUN WINS

Moon Run won the referees' charity cup soccer tilt yesterday at Hazelberg, defeating the Carrs Shannon Murrys by a 2-to-0 score before a large crowd.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—Well, folks, I rapped out this little essay at the Washington depot before we started our first western trip of the year. Our first stop is Chicago. Capone is in jail now, but I hope the town is still supplied with beer.

And did you see those $500 fines laid on the White Sox for their muss with Ump Moriarity? Why the American League is getting more jack out of the fight racket these days than the Madison Square Garden folks.

I have often wanted to take a sock at an umpire, but not $500 worth. For that much I'd want the privilege of lining 'em all up before a machine gun.

Pittsburgh Tennis Association racqueters face hectic series of practice this week for not only has the bi-divisional Inter-Club League title chase swung into full parade with highly important contesting listed for next Saturday, but the forty-fourth annual Western Pennsylvania championships are set to get under way on June 18, less than a fortnight hence.

Don Mattern's top-heavy University Club contingent scrambled the Section I circuit situation aplenty last week-end by holding the crack Edgewood array of Frank Smith to no better than 6-3 triumph and thus permitting Dr. Dave O'Loughlin's P. A. A. delegation to soar into deadlock with the Suburbanites for initial position in the Davis Keg pursuit.

LINEUPS DEPLETED

Edgewood ... without Charley Lockhart, while both P. A. A. and Mt. Lebanon likewise offered depleted lineups, the former having been minus Dave O'Loughlin, whose shoulder is ailing, and the latter having come to bat with E. A. Knoche and Johnny Brown out of the lineup.

Shannopin ... with Irvin Goodman, Pitt slasher, on deck, looked like a lot of the goods in thumping South Hills, 8-1, while Stanton Heights, drawing on her old Manhood, Mabon, Bovard, Bill Spindler, Carlton Hughes and Karl Wolfe, continued fine pace.

Duquesne Library, re-enforced by the Duke varsity luminaries, Frank Casey and Rege Bullion, inaugurated Section II festivities with impressive 7-2 verdict over Westinghouse Seconds to assume the leadership of the lower wheel. College Avenue barely took Washington Heights, 5-4.

DUKES FACE ALUMNI

Last gasp of the local collegiate campaign is on tomorrow's bill with Duquesne playing host to the Alumni as part of the annual Alumni Day celebration on the Bluff. The oldtimers hope to bring back such redoubtables as Dick and Jimmy O'Connor, Sam Keller, Jimmy Creighton, Tom Petrisco, Andy Smeaton, the Philpott twins, Pete Colledi and various others to the scene of their early honors.

It is rumored about the Pitt campus that the crack Panther net squad will be represented by the two Bills—Jacobs and O'Loughlin—in the National Intercollegiates at Marion the week of June 20.

Local Weight Star Second in Tourney

J. Repak, Jr., with a total of 800 pounds, finished second in the heavyweight class in the National A. A. U. weight-lifting championships staged at York, Pa., over the week-end. Another Pittsburgher, J. Opatchen, lifted 544 pounds in the middleweight class, but failed to place. John F. Britt was third in the 132-pound class with a lift of 522½ pounds. All represented the Milo A. C.

A new American record for the two-arm snatch was set by S. Krakowski, of Detroit, with a hoist of 231½ pounds.

TRIBE, TIGERS FACE TEST IN AMERICAN

Associated Press

The forthcoming invasion of the West by the powerful eastern teams will furnish the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians a chance to demonstrate just how seriously they must be considered in the current American League pennant chase.

These two clubs alone seem equipped to offer adequate opposition to the three eastern contenders, the New York Yankees, Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics.

YANKS WIN FINAL

The Athletics walloped Washington, 11-7, although outhit, 17-13. The Senators missed the scoring punch of Joe Cronin and Heinie Manush, both on the sidelines with injuries. Detroit counted six runs in the eighth to trip Cleveland, 10-9, Wes Ferrell getting into the game just in time to be charged with the defeat.

In the National League, the Boston Braves went into a virtual tie with the idle Chicago Cubs by winning two games from the New York Giants, 6-5, 7-6. New York Giants, 6-5, 7-6. Manager Bill Terry, of the Giants, was injured in the second game and had to retire.

The St. Louis Cardinals moved into fourth place with 3-2 victories in both ends of a double-header with the Cincinnati Reds.

Once again the City League holds the attention of the sandlot fans as the battle for first half honors between Dormont, defending champion, and the Book nine continues. The rivals clash this evening at Olympia Park in the feature sandlot contest of the schedule, with the Homestead Grays and Washington Pilots hooking up at Greenlee Field in an East-West League fracas as a co-feature.

The Dormonters lived up to their reputation as fighters in the game at Dormont on Friday. Carroll outpitched both Stewart and Callahan, and there is quite a chance that Leo will again draw the assignment to meet the league leaders this evening.

Book fans are hoping that Capt. Heinie Boll will be in shape to get into this battle. The presence of the Lawrenceville veteran will make a big difference to the morale of the club.

Continuing their East-West League campaign, the Homestead Grays present the Washington Pilots at Greenlee Field this evening at 6:15 o'clock. This is Washington's first trip to Pittsburgh.

The team is piloted by Dick Lundy, one of the best shortstops in the league. The Washington team also includes on its roster Webster McDonald, the star submarine pitcher, a hurler who has been stamped as one of the best in the circuit. McDonald will likely take the mound against the Grays this evening in an effort to avenge the setback his mates suffered in Wheeling yesterday when the Grays scored their nineteenth league victory.

Tomorrow the Grays are to play at New Castle and on Wednesday at Clarion, Pa. The Detroit team is scheduled to meet the Grays here on Thursday in a league contest.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 6.—(AP.)—Harry Ertle, secretary of the state boxing commission and referee of the Dempsey-Carpentier match at Boyle's Thirty Acres several years ago, died today in the Medical Center.

Ertle was admitted to the hospital three weeks ago for treatment for a chronic stomach ailment. In September, 1931, he underwent an operation and his condition thereafter improved and he went to Florida for a long rest. He suffered a relapse three weeks ago.

Among the important boxing contests refereed by Ertle, in addition to the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, were the Willard-Firpo, Stribling-McTigue, Bass-Shea, Leonard-Dundee, Carpentier-Levinsky and Kilbane-Burns bouts.

COCHET WINS NET TITLE

ANTEUIL, France, June 6.—(AP.)—Henri Cochet, of France, the world's ranking tennis player, today won the French singles title for the fifth time, defeating George de Stefani, Italian Davis Cup player, in the final, 6-0, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

The competition was thrown open to the world in 1925, and since that time Cochet, Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra have taken turns winning it. LaCoste in 1925, 1927 and 1929, Cochet in 1926, 1928 and 1930, and Borotra last year.

Turnbulls Trail In Turin Races

TURIN, June 6.—(AP.)—Italians made a clean sweep of the Turin motorboat races yesterday as the California Turnbulls suffered unexpected reverses that counteracted their winning performances in the first heats. Cups were awarded to the racers whose average speed for two days was highest.

Loretta Turnbull finished second for the motonautic cup, which was won by Mario Guerini. Rupert Turnbull finished second in the heat for the Montelera cup, won by Carlo Borghesio. Raymond Turnbull finished fifth in the competition for the City of Turin cup.

RICHARDS, SHIELDS TIE

Richards, professional, and Frank X. Shields, Davis Cup tennis star, today fought a set apiece against each other in a two-set exhibition match. Shields took the first 6-2 and Richards the second, 7-5.

STOCK MARKET DIPS UNDER PRESSURE

Telephone, Can, U. S. Steel Decline 2 to 3 Points; Cheerful Tone Retained

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Securities markets began the new week with a substantial letdown from the levels reached in the sweeping recovery of the past three trading sessions.

Profit taking and hangover liquidation invited by the higher prices was in modest volume however, and the reaction while substantial was not regarded in brokerage quarters as excessive in view of the extent of the recent upswing. Common stocks were almost uniformly heavy, but bonds and preferred issues continued to move forward in spots. Shares rallied a little after midday.

Among shares losing 2 to 3 points were American Telephone, American Can, United States Steel, Consolidated Gas, Eastman, Corn Products, National Biscuit, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco "B", Reynolds "B", Coca Cola, Union Pacific and Santa Fe. Norfolk and Western and Delaware and Hudson lost 4 and special selling appeared in Brooklyn-Manhattan-Transit issues which broke about 6 points.

The break in the B-M-T issues was attributed to uncertainty over the common dividend action to be considered by the directors later in the month. The day's dividend news was on the whole fairly encouraging. Lamoert cut its annual rate to $4 from $8 but paid an extra of $1, so stockholders get $2 for the quarter, as before. Detroit Edison ordered the regular $1 quarterly payment but the management announced a reduction might be ordered in the autumn payment, unless business improves.

Brokerage commentators had been inclined to look for an interruption early this week to the rally which set in last Thursday, so sentiment remained guardedly cheerful over the outlook for coming weeks. The week-end analysis of investment advisory services were more cheerful than they have been for some time.

Nevertheless, it was recognized that business activity remains extremely low, and with the usually quiet summer period now approaching, the best that can be hoped for apparently is a smaller than usual seasonal recession.

Filing of the incorporation papers for the American Securities Investing Corporation, which stated it was the intention to "engage principally in the business of purchasing and investing in bonds or debentures or other obligations," again attracted interest to this powerful banking investment program. So far as could be learned, the corporation has not yet begun operations.

GRAIN VALUES AGAIN DROP

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP.)—General selling and new downturns of grain values here took place early today following sharp setbacks in wheat quotations at Liverpool. Cables said the cause of wheat prices at Liverpool had been greatly influenced by the demoralized Winnipeg market.

Wheat, corn and oats in Chicago outdid bottom price records for the season. Opening ⅛ to 1⅛ off, Chicago wheat futures fell further afterward. Corn started ⅛ to ⅜ down and continued to sag.

Downward pressure on the Chicago wheat market increased after figures were posted showing a fresh break of around 4 cents a bushel at Winnipeg. Chicago wheat prices tumbled more than 2½ cents in some cases before rallies set in, helped by rumors of enlarged North American export business. Rye, as well as other grains, established new low price records for the season. Corn and oats lacked support. Provisions reflected grain weakness, despite upturns in hog values.

New York Curb Market — Latest Financial News

PRESENT SLOW BUSINESS PACE WILL END

Equities in Prosperity Sure To Return Are Now Cheap; Mob Judgment Fallible

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
United Press Service

NEW YORK, June 6.—Recent gloom and distress selling brought stock prices to a level where those with a remnant of capital left had a choice between buying two seats on the aisle for $11 or acquiring a line of stocks for the same cash outlay.

Ownership shares in substantial companies, though perhaps unattractive from the standpoint of near-term earnings prospects dropped to a level where they can be considered as options or warrants which at a low price assure participation in future prosperity when, as and if. This opportunities to hedge against the puerile assumption that adversity will continue indefinitely have became abundant.

Mr. Rukeyser

In the bond market, especially before the rails based on the expectation of manipulative support, fixed maturity obligations have been quoted so far below face value that they take on many of the characteristics of equities. Accordingly, even those who in normal times prefer stocks to bonds because the latter normally offer little promise of appreciation, can now find something of interest in the bond market.

In the recent hysteria aggravated by the vicious spiral caused by defects in the marginal system, little discrimination was shown. In the rush to liquidate the good, the bad and the indifferent were alike sacrificed. During the process bankers and brokers, who were loudest in ballyhooing the greatness of American business institutions when their securities were overpriced, were silent as the same stocks and bonds were quoted at a small fraction of their former values. The crowd was wrong in 1929.

Is there any reason to expect that mob judgment as expressed at the marketplace will prove infallible this time?

Obviously, the intrinsic value of securities will be conditional upon success in raising the gross realized income of the country, which will be down some 35 per cent this year from the 1929 peak. The chief attention of management should be directed toward increasing the gross turnover of business so that companies can once more achieve the economies of mass production and mass distribution and thus end the present temporary nightmare of profitless business.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 6. After last week's sensational spurt, the bond market turned somewhat irregular today. While some issues shaded their prices others ignored profit-taking and continued to follow the upward path. Austrian 7s and Japanese 6½s indicated improvement, but minor losses were suffered by bonds of France, Belgium, Great Britain and Germany. The United States government department was quiet and comparatively steady.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

Brokers' Suspension Halts Tin Trading

LONDON, June 6.—(AP)—Considerable surprise was occasioned today when the governing committee of the London Metal Exchange announced temporary suspension of the tin market because of the failure of Lewis Lazarus & Sons to meet its engagements.

The suspension, said the announcement, was to permit "continuation of negotiations in progress among important tin interests with a view to minimizing any dislocation which might otherwise arise."

Treasury Financing In June $750,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—The last borrowing the government intends to do until its finances get all straight again will be the sale June 15 of $750,000,000 worth of treasury securities. This will bring the fiscal year 1932's borrowing up almost to the three billion mark, but the next fiscal year is to be run strictly on a pay-as-you-go basis if hopes and expectations materialize.

The new issues will consist of $400,000,000 in three-year treasury notes bearing 3 per cent interest and $350,000,000 of one-year certificates paying 1½ per cent.

Soft Coal Output Declines for Week

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Production of soft coal in the United States, including lignite and coal coked at the mines, for the week ended May 28 is estimated by the Bureau of Mines at 4,230,000 tons, a decrease of 48,000 tons or 1.1 per cent from the preceding week and comparing with 6,481,000 tons for the like 1931 week.

Anthracite output for the week is estimated at 720,000 net tons, up 22,000 tons or 3.1 per cent from the preceding week and comparing with 1,384,000 tons for the like 1931 week.

Southern Pacific Seeks Bank Loans

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—The Southern Pacific Railroad today applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to pledge $35,646,106 of Central Pacific Railway Company's European loan bonds for 1911 on short term bank loans.

The Southern Pacific also asked permission to guarantee these bonds and use them as security for notes, saying this would enable the applicant to meet temporary financial requirements during the next few months.

RAIL MEN PLAN REFORMS

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—Railroad reforms, both from within and without, are to be considered by the Association of Railway Executives at a meeting to be held within the next few weeks.

A subcommittee of the association, it was learned today, has practically completed plans which call for a drastic alteration in railroad operating methods besides making an appeal for legislative co-operation which will enable the carriers to weather the present economic storm.

The subcommittee is especially considering the suggestion of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the pooling of passenger facilities in cases where there is not enough business to provide profits for all.

At the same time the railway executives expect to appeal to the various states for more comprehensive laws to eliminate allegedly unfair competition from trucks and buses.

COTTON PRICES STEADY, OFF

NEW YORK, June 6.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 5 to 9 points on local and commission house selling in response to relatively easy cables. July sold at 5.35c.

A little southern selling was also in evidence and the decline extended to 5.16c for July and 5.54c for December after the call, making net losses of about 10 to 14 points after which the market steadied slightly on covering and trade buying.

The market weakened again later in the morning under a renewal of liquidation and further scattered selling promoted by the weakness and easier tone of the stock market. July sold off to 5.10 cents and December to 5.47 cents, making net losses of about 20 points, and at mid-day the market was quiet and barely steady at the decline.

LIVERPOOL, June 6.—Cotton, no receipts. Spot in fair demand, prices nine points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 4.75; good middling, 4.35; strict middling, 4.25; midolino, 4.20; strict low middling, 4.10; low middling, 4.00; strict good ordinary, 3.80; strict good ordinary, 3.80; good ordinary, 3.50. Steel Operations Lower This Week

CLEVELAND, O., June 6.—(AP)—Steelmaking operations in the past week declined two points to 21 per cent, the lowest rate this year, with indications that it will fall off another point, to 20 per cent, the Magazine Steel says in its weekly market summary.

Pig iron production descended to an historical low in May, when a net loss of five brought the active list of blast furnaces May 31 to 54 out of 297 and the daily rate to 28,282 gross tons, 11.4 per cent under April, the magazine notes. "Not since pig iron statistics began to be compiled, in 1903, has the daily rate been so low, on the basis of estimates for previous years, May appears the leanest month since midsummer of 1897.

Forbes

Has Zero Hour Finally Passed in This Land?

By B. C. FORBES

HAS THE ZERO HOUR been passed in America?

In less than 48 hours stock market values rebounded some 20 per cent at the end of last week, many bonds enjoyed a still more spectacular recovery, and financial sentiment performed a somersault.

Mr. Forbes

If the recovery in securities be maintained the probability is that business, industry, commodities, employment will be benefitted.

Unless Washington politicians persist in flying off at a tangent, there is substantial reason for hoping, even believing, that at last the turn has come.

SINCE THIS WRITER publicly addressed a letter to J. P. Morgan urging him, in view of the part his firm played in overdoing the boom, to step forward and exhibit affirmative leadership to stay the debacle which was an inevitable consequence of the reckless inflation, the organization by Morgan & Co. of a powerful banking group to buy unduly depressed bonds can only be welcomed by the writer—as it has been welcomed demonstratively by the financial community.

It was this move which was mainly responsible for the bond market's and the stock market's about-face in the second half of this week.

SOUND BUSINESS normally has as its motive the garnering of profits. This avowedly is the objective of the powerful new banking corporation which is to invest in bond bargains immediately its sponsors are satisfied that Congress will act half way reasonably in effecting economies, imposing tax levies and coming within sight of balancing the budget.

Congress' bark has been worse than its bite. Jackass legislators have proposed all sorts of mischievous burdens upon industry and taxpayers, but thus far the most absurd proposals have not reached the statute books. The financial community is hopeful that in the end Congress will act more sensibly than urged by its irresponsible rebels.

THE MOST DISCOURAGING pressure on the security markets lately has come, not from bears, but from financial institutions carrying impaired loans. Now that the nation's most influential banks have combined to buy bonds with the aim of reaping generous profits, presumably every effort will be exerted henceforth to withholding the dumping of collateral.

Relieved of this pressure, it will be logical for investments to climb from their absurd depths towards more reasonable levels, especially as it is everywhere recognized that fear alone has lately played a major part in wrecking security values.

EVERY HOPEFUL prediction heretofore has gone awry. Yet, one is tempted to reason that, the pendulum having swung so unconscionably far backwards, it may now at last start swinging definitely forwards—provided, of course, Congress does not run hopelessly amuck.

ADMITTEDLY, no convincing betterment has yet developed in retail trade, in industry as a whole, in power consumption, in railway traffic, in construction, in foreign trade, in the general price level, in employment.

Also, Europe is still confronted with very grave problems, the solution of which cannot be clearly foreseen. That the United States will not be able to resume immediately the collection of its full quota of war debts is generally taken for granted and has been largely discounted. Hopes grow that the proposed international economic conference to devise ways and means to bring about greater price stability will first help sentiment and then perhaps achieve tangible results.

THUS, HOPEFULNESS once again is in the ascendant.

N. C. A. A. MEET NEXT COLLEGE TRACK EVENT

By JESS CARVER

The eleventh annual N. C. A. A. (to you, National Collegiate Athletic Association) track and field championships, this year one of the most important of the Olympic team tests, is next in line for the college track and field men of the nation. It is an event of Friday and Saturday in Chicago, the definite site being Stagg Field.

District representation will be light and not overly strong. Pitt may have two or three entries; Geneva will send Howard Spencer, the high jumper, and West Virginia, Fraser, a fair sprinter.

The battle for the team title is an open one as Southern California, winner a year ago, is not sending a team east. The Trojans blame the depression. With the U. S. C. squad out, Michigan appears to have as good a chance as any to win.

Saturday's Junior A. M. A. championship meet at Beaver Falls hardly could be called either an artistic or financial success. The competition was not as keen as was expected, and the turnout far from a record-busting one. Times and distances were only fair. Thompson, Sharon High star, broad-jumped 21 feet 11 inches; Spencer cleared 6 feet 4½ inches in the high jump, and the Pitt relay team, composed of Capt. Monheim, Jim Watkins, Bill Keller and Woody Harris, beat Geneva's crack quartet in a special four-fifths mile race in 2:34.6 to provide the best efforts.

Bob Carey Victor In Detroit Race

DETROIT, June 6.—(AP.)—Bob Carey, Pacific coast automobile racer, was victor over a field of 14 in a dirt track race at the State Fairgrounds yesterday. The race, scheduled for 100 miles, was stopped at the end of the eighteth lap of the one-mile track because of rain.

The contest was declared official, however, and Carey will receive 120 points toward the 1932 national championship. His average time was 71.575 miles an hour. Howdy Wilcox finished in second place, and behind him came Fred Frame, winner of the Memorial Day classic at Indianapolis. Stubby Stubblefield was fourth and Sam Ross fifth.

Jeanette Is Angered When Leland Meets Her and Tries to Explain

"Jeanette!"

"Stop—please stop, Jeanette!"

He was certain that she could hear him for her car made but little noise over the soft dirt road.

But Jeanette did not turn her head. She had heard him, as he knew well enough she did, but her mind was in a turmoil from the shock.

Naturally one thought came to her and had buried himself in the woods with another woman.

Why else had he called out to her that she was not married? Jeanette couldn't understand. It seemed a most unusual thing to do.

That was much worse to Jeanette than that of looking after. That Leland could stoop to a common love affair would have been beyond her belief if she hadn't been there. Seen Leland heard the woman say that they were not married and also saw the baby.

It was quite a sizeable tot, Jeanette recalled. The little chap had been running around in the sunshine when she walked down the path and when Leland had come out and lifted the child up.

The child's voice she overheard was Leland's. He called the woman mother, and from the size of the child Jeanette figured he had been born probably a year before she had met Leland. So that was it—Leland was the fairy she told herself and out of a sense of duty according to his views he had refused to marry Jeanette and had run away to care for his child and its mother.

There was no explaining Jeanette said to herself over and over.

SENDS MESSAGE

Meanwhile as her car disappeared from Leland's view he cut across the woods to the Orson place and had a talk with Harvey.

Orson did not know of any strange woman being in that locality although someone had said that a "furrin woman" was living at the Baumgartner farm near Crocketts station.

"Orson," Leland said, "I dare not go out there just now, but I wish you would drive over and find this woman, take a note to her."

Orson would go anything for Leland out of friendship, and in addition Leland paid him well for his services, bringing in produce and the like. He gladly agreed to go.

"On second thought, Orson," Leland said, "I will not write a note."

He had followed Orson out and was helping him harness his horse. He regretted then, that he had never bought a small car for the man to use.

"When you find her she may refuse to talk, Orson," Leland went on with his instructions, "but you can say to her that the woman she saw is my sister."

"Shall I say it in front of any one else, Mister Forbes?"

"Yes, you can say just that—'The woman you saw is his sister'—I am sure then that she will let you talk with her alone. You tell her she must come back at once."

LOLA UPSET

Orson agreed. Leland watched him drive away and then he went back home.

Lola was terribly distressed as he knew she would be.

"Leland," was her greeting, "that woman means something to you. Why have you kept it secret?"

"There was no need to disturb you, Lola. You have had about all the burden your slim shoulders can bear. No need to worry, now it will all be straightened out, I feel sure."

"Who is she, Leland?"

"Jeanette Morse—she illustrates my books."

"Isn't she more than a business friend?"

"You love her—isn't that true?"

He saw that there was no way of evading this now, and decided to tell her the truth.

"Yes, I love her. We expected—that is, I hope to marry her some day."

"Tell me, how soon were you to be married at the time you brought me here?"

"Oh, fairly soon. I intended to tell you, but you were having so much trouble right then, but it will work out."

Lola sat down suddenly and began to cry.

JEANETTE LEAVES

"What a miserable failure I am, and how I have spoiled your life and the life of that pretty woman," she sobbed.

He tried his best to comfort her. In a measure she was right, but he tried to make her see that it was something she couldn't avoid.

"I could have taken your advice. I should have had more sense than to lose my head and think that I loved that man because he was good looking—if I hadn't married him—"

"It's won't help now, Lola, there is the present and the future to face."

He told her about sending Orson out to Crocketts on the strength of the report that some strange woman was living there.

It seemed hours and hours to Leland that Orson was gone. Or perhaps ages, for it was nearly dusk when Orson left his horse on the knoll and came down the path.

He was alone. Leland felt at once that Orson had failed. But as he ran out to greet Orson he called: "Is she coming back?"

"I reckon I failed ye, Mr. Forbes. When I got to Baumgartener's place she had paid up and driv away in her car."

Leland shook his head dolefully.

"It weren't no use of me a followin' of her, Mister Forbes, with my old hoss and her in a car. She driv down toward Wytheville. Effen Baumgartener had him a car we'd a followed."

"No, you couldn't do more, Orson. I'm grateful."

Orson could see that Forbes was bitterly disappointed. He said briefly that he hated to see him grieve, and went back to his horse.

PLANS LOLA'S FUTURE

Lola stood in the doorway. She knew then how disappointed her brother must be.

"You must write to her and explain everything, Leland," she said.

He shook his head.

"Not yet. The first thing for you to do is to get away from here. I am going to get you down to New Orleans and send you to the Argentine."

"No, no, Leland—you love her, you must go to her. I have cost you enough sorrow and misery."

"This is more than love, Lola. We won't argue. I shall have you safely aboard a fruit steamer in the Argentine you will be safe. Cordoba is high and healthy and there is a good American and English colony there. You speak Spanish fairly well. I have been thinking of this for some time in preference to Italy."

Leland spoke rapidly. He was all energy. As soon as he could see his sister safely aboard the steamer he would go north. If the authorities went after him he could say he had been searching the world over for his sister. If they wanted to hold him as an accessory in the killing of Harlow, he would have to face the music, but anything would be better than letting matters go on.

"And Jeanette, unintentionally is likely to tell of seeing me. It is evident, Lola, that she has placed no connection between the—what happened—and myself. She might not have even read about it," Leland said.

GOES WITH SISTER

Lola agreed. It was the best thing to be done. She had already caused enough misery. She understood now why Leland had been so sad all through this, a sadness he had been unable to disguise. It startled her to think what a sacrifice he had made. She clung to him and wept again, told him no woman ever had such a brother and disputed him when he said that this was more than love.

"Nothing can be more than love, Leland—real love. I know because I never had real love."

There wasn't much to pack. Harvey Orson came over and took orders. He drove away and brought a man with a car, a man he could trust.

Probably the happiest man in Grayson County was Orson's son, Wallie. He was about to marry, and Leland, who had bought this house, gave it to the boy with all of its furnishings.

The next afternoon they started out driving over Stone Mountains into Tennessee and to Mountain City.

There were no more difficulties. Lola was fitted out in New Orleans and sailed for South America under an assumed name. At the last moment Leland decided to go with her, he couldn't leave her to go alone. She fought against this, but he insisted.

A few weeks later Lola was established in a little home in Cordoba with servants and everything essential. Not until then did Leland feel that he could leave her.

GIVEN COOL RECEPTION

On his return to New York he went directly to the office of Gerald Adams, his lawyer and old-time friend. Adams greeted him pleasantly enough, but his first words were: "We will talk about everything Leland, except your absence and your reasons for it."

Naturally she received him coldly, did not ask him in and to his questions about Jeanette, she repeated:

"I don't know where she is."

There was no use trying to explain to this woman. He left, greatly discouraged, although he believed that Mrs. Kellogg did know where Jeanette was.

If he could locate Jeanette he would explain now. He would wind up his affairs and take her away to Europe, down to see Lola, anywhere, everywhere, except back home again.

Mr. Maxin tried not to show surprise when Leland walked into his office.

"We failed to locate you or Paul Justin out in Oregon and gave it up," he said.

It was unfortunate, but necessary, was the only comment Leland made. He talked business with Maxin for a half hour and then said, casually: "Where is Miss Morse these days?"

"In town—she was in here yesterday. She is doing illustrations for some of our juvenile books."

"I'll probably see her living with her married sister, I suppose."

"I suppose so."

"I am grateful that you were loyal," Leland said.

FINALLY SEES GIRL

Maxin seemed surprised, but made no comment on this.

Leland still dreaded what might follow. He still feared that some of the Connecticut authorities would learn of his presence in the city and make trouble for him.

He felt half ashamed, but he began wearing heavy tortoise shell glasses. They go far in disguising one.

For three days he telephoned to the Kellogg apartment and on each occasion he was told that Miss Morse was out, that the speaker did not know when she would be back, that the speaker could take no message.

He was determined to find her. He thought of writing, but he couldn't put into writing things necessary in an explanation, for it wouldn't be fair to his sister and Leland never forgot that his sister was still in danger if she were ever found.

Every day he dropped in at his publishers office on one pretext or another, hoping to find Jeanette.

She looked at him sadly.

"Please—I must go," she said.

"You must listen to me, Jeanette. I want—"

"Leland Forbes—I despise you! How dare you speak to me?" Jeanette cried with a flash of anger that startled him.

Don't miss the first instalment of "Skyscraper" next Wednesday.

Synopsis

Leland Forbes and Jeanette Morse meet in Virginia and fall in love. They plan an early marriage. Forbes only relative is a sister who is married to a worthless brute. Leland has not mentioned her to Jeanette. Just before the day set for the marriage his sister comes to Leland with her baby. She is in terror and explains that she has killed her brutal husband when he attacked her. There were no witnesses and her husband's relatives, who hate her, will she fears, commit perjury to send her to the chair. Leland feels that this is a duty more than love and takes his sister and baby to a hiding place in the Blue Ridge Mountains, leaving a mysterious farewell note for Jeanette. After a long period Jeanette finds Leland at the mountain hut, but seeing the baby and his sister, and hearing Lola try to explain that they are not married, Jeanette runs away heartbroken before Leland can stop her to explain.

Now Go On

He met Jeanette after nearly a week had passed.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club don't have to worry about the heat these Saturday holidays. Saturday was a scorcher, but not for these kiddies. They all piled into the theaters out of the blistering sun. And what a relief!

Each and every one of the theaters where meetings of the Komic Club are held is artificially cooled to a temperature of a little less than 70 degrees, and as a result the youngsters were all as cool as cucumbers throughout the various meetings.

KEEP COOL

Several managers reported that many of his club members, both boys and girls, remained in the theaters from the meeting time at noon until it was time to go home to supper. Some of them saw the entire show two and three times, but they escaped the burning heat of the day on the streets.

At the Manor Theater in Squirrel Hill, where the club meets, Manager Joseph Blowitz last week appointed his assistant, C. S. Shannon, to conduct the meeting Saturday. Mr. Shannon arranged a large program of entertainment for the youngsters. Arthur Kraine and Howard Gross, two very clever chaps, 11 and 12, wrote a comedy sketch and spent several evenings last week rehearsing before their "Dads" so that they would be perfect when they appeared at the meeting. The members applauded loud and long when the final scene brought down the curtain. These boys were forced to take four curtain calls.

SING AND DANCE

Besides these two clever little chaps, Mr. Shannon had the following boys and girls who sang and danced: Marjorie Klee, Ria Oliver, Simon Bernice and Le Roy Garson, Rasoli Lazar and Flora May Gurson. Jack Goldstein assisted Mr. Shannon in conducting the meeting and sang several popular songs for the kiddies.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, send in your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you. Or you may join at any of the Warner Theaters where the Komic Club meet on Saturday, and a membership card and button will be given you then.

And here we find him, or shall I say, them, peering with others of his sex, and gloating, in utter shameless, peep-show fashion, at a bevy of ladies' night in a bathing cloth.

Sissy Economics

The steady forward march in American economic development has been retarded of late by the psychology of fear.

In opposing Congressional plans for a bond issue to accelerate job creating construction activities, the chief executive and the treasury head are actuated very largely by an all too tender regard for the timidities of bankers.

There is a disposition to let economic activity dwindle still further in deference to the fright of financiers. Evidently the administration has yet to learn what the country long ago found out, namely, that the Wall Street bankers, instead of being colossal and dictatorial figures, are in reality nowadays only old ladies with shaken nerves.

Instead of equivocating further with half way measures, based on sissy economics compounded of timidity and negation, Congress should forthwith turn its attention to TRADE BUILDING POLICIES.

The myth that the evils that beset the country could be eliminated by the indirect route of financing the financiers has been exploded.

The attempt to get FIAT prosperity by attempting to peg railroad bonds through advances by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which generally enabled weak carriers to bail out disappointed bankers, has been futile.

Accordingly, until fundamentals are corrected, the financial cripples that went to this government-owned super-bank for succor, will be around again in a few months.

The supplementary policy, consisting of the open market operations of the Federal Reserve, has not yet had an affirmatively helpful effect on industry, commerce or agriculture.

The additional credit released by the Federal Reserve banks got dammed up as unused excess reserves in the hands primarily of the large eastern bankers. They lacked the confidence to invest the additional funds in loans and investments, which would have pumped credit into business. Still more recently part of these reserves have been dissipated in gold exports and increased currency demand.

If reflation is to be the goal, Senator Carter Glass has proposed an alternative method.

Under the Glass proposal, national banks would be authorized to use for a period of five years all United States bonds as a basis for national bank notes. The maximum limit would be 100 per cent of their own capital.

The Glass proposal merely carries a step further the present law which gives the currency issuing privilege to the 2 per cent Panama Canal bonds now outstanding. The national banks could issue $114,000,000 more of currency under the existing law. The Glass amendment would give the right to add a billion more of such currency.

Inasmuch as the 7,600 national banks are scattered throughout the country, they could thus expand credit and currency in accordance with local need better than a central agency remotely situated at the financial capital.

The Glass bill would further relieve the banks of the danger of being pinched by hoarding tendencies, and would free the business community of any threat of insufficiency of funds.

It would be a more direct avenue for reflation, or counter deflation, than the present Federal Reserve policy, which it would supplement and reinforce.

Until business and political management addresses itself courageously to the central problem of enlarging gross turnover, relief measures will be half-hearted and ineffectual.

The way to recovery consists of a bold effort to put supply and demand—production and consumption—in balance again.

The Vote Machine Quiz

Senator Harris's Statement That It Is Progressing Satisfactorily Is Assuring.

In view of the fact that Senators Joseph G. Armstrong and Chauncey W. Parkinson, constituting a majority, have prevented the propounding of certain important questions in the investigation, by a Senate committee, of Allegheny County's contract for the purchase of voting machines, Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, suggested, in a letter to the editor of the Sun-Telegraph, that a grand jury investigation was in order.

Senator Frank J. Harris makes the reassuring statement, however, that the inquiry is progressing satisfactorily. Senator Harris sponsored the voting machine legislation, and is so heartily in favor of honesty and a square deal for the taxpayers that it can scarcely be doubted that he will go the limit, if necessary, to uncover anything of a questionable nature that may have occurred in the county's transactions with the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, manufacturers of the machines.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park no doubt can be relied on, too, to lay the business before the grand jury if it becomes desirable.

Duquesne Light First

Local Company's Rates Have Properly Been Chosen for Early Consideration by Commission.

Proper consideration for the needs of domestic consumers of electric power in the Pittsburgh district is shown by the Public Service Commission in the announcement that the first of the conferences with public utilities companies on the fairness of their rates will be held with representatives of the Duquesne Light Company.

The Duquesne Light Company's rates are excessive, and a reduction is imperative. Fortified by auditors' reports of the company's earnings, Commissioners Samuel Walker and George W. Woodruff are expected to urge the company to reduce its charges, not only for the customers' benefit but in its own interest, as a method of gaining good-will.

If the company were prudent, it would cut rates at once, and not wait for the conclusion either of the Public Service Commission's negotiations or those that are being conducted by the City Solicitor.

The Double-Track Marriage

* * *

Oh well we are divorcing these days for everything else, from money and politics to bridge and boredom—so why not for love?

* * *

Many a woman has taken her trusty little revolver and sent her husband into Kingdom Come because she "loved him so." And many another has untied the apron strings so that her erring spouse could make himself miserable with a cute little playmate half his age. These can hardly be called "sacrifices," because you can't sacrifice a love that you don't possess.

But, when a beautiful screen star deliberately goes to Reno and cuts the matrimonial bonds, because her still devoted husband cannot endure to shine in the reflected glory of her fame, she makes the supreme sacrifice to love—and masculine vanity.

* * *

* * *

Funny! Two men can work together, perfectly amicably, on the stage or the radio or in the writing game, for their mutual success and profit. They can Amos-and-Andy their way to the top without a germ of jealousy. And two women can run a business or form a vaudeville team, and get along without a ripple of disagreement.

But only in the rarest cases can a man and a woman, who are in love with each other, make a go of the double-track career. And, almost never, when the woman's success is more brilliant and of greater candlepower than the man's.

* * *

Yet the IDEAL MARRIAGE, the most glamorous marriage in the world, is that of two lovers working TOGETHER for the same aim and the same ambition. Whether it's the woman's career or the man's success, the woman's art or the man's fame, the womans' dream or the man's high vision. Above all, when it is for the success of BOTH in the same art, the same business or the same profession.

* * *

Some fair lady, perhaps men and women will marry in order to work together, instead of just in order to play together. But, not until then, will they learn the meaning of true "togetherness," which is the Ideal Marriage.

George Huston, rising and handsome young baritone, and Myra Kingsley, equally celebrated along the Gold Coast as an astrologist, indulged a quixotic adventure in matrimony—an experiment guided by astronomical calculations. They were supremely happy, then a sudden rift and amicably they were divorced. The break, however, is only a hiatus, and friends say heavens foretell a resumption of domestic happiness in 1933, when they will be married again. During the interlude, they have been the warmest of friends, seeing each other at intervals and being in telephonic communication daily. Baritones, it seems, may not make enduring husbands, but are dandy beaux.

Humanity's stride interests me curiously. More so oftimes than beautiful expressions of character or other purely physical attributes. For instance, the Bowery swagger of Patsy Kelly and Hope Williams, incongruously the Social Register's gift to the stage. Also the gangling gaits of H. T. Webster, Ring Lardner, and Robert E. Sherwood. Eddie Cantor walks as though he were about to take off to fly. Jack Dempsey has the sinuous glide of the panther. Joe Urban has a heavy-footed waddle. Alexander Woolcott hippety-hops. Otto Kahn minces in a mignon way, as does Charles Chaplin. George M. Cohan and Mayor Walker have a cocky swagger, and Wallace Beery has a water-front lurch. Will Rogers indulges the drag of the levee. Ed Wynn is slew-footed. Herbert B. Swope's step suggests a runner responding to the pistol crack. Karl K. Kitchen's stride is militaristic. As is Achmed Abdullah's. John Farrar, Frazier Hunt and Ogden Nash seem to be stepping over clouds. And Russell Patterson appears as though he might any moment pirouette into a dance.

* * *

Similarly I recall Richard Mansfield more for his majestic stride than for his throaty intonations. George Arliss, too, moves along with the swift tickety-tack of the roller skater. Fred Stone has a see-saw swagger. And Harriet Hoctor suggests a swallow skimming into the sunlight.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Rosie and Rita have just been in. Giggling and gushing, spilling gossip and cigaret ashes all over the place, scooting off to see some perfectly marvelous fellow—two cute lil' trick blondes! You'd never guess they were mother and daughter.

You see a lot of that sort of thing nowadays. It's supposed to be smart for Ma and the kid to be just girl's together. In fact, the modern mama who isn't taken for her child's sister is considered a museum specimen.

Time was when mother was a mother, and daughter was a daughter, and rarely the twain did meet.

But nowadays, thanks to an increase in beauty shop technique and a decrease in maternal intelligence, thousands of mothers and daughters are doing a Sister Act—WHICH IS RAPIDLY BECOMING ONE OF OUR MAJOR PAINS-IN-THE-NECK.

For though it may look lovely to see mama sharing daughter's clean, girlish fun, what happens in the home when the missis becomes a sweet young thing?

Plenty! Dishes pile up in the kitchen sink. Bills pile up in the department store. Dad comes home to an empty house, munches something out of the ice box, wonders, in irritated bewilderment, "where the girls have gone." And, for further developments, consult our divorce records; our juvenile delinquency records. That's what happens when mama stops being a mother and becomes one of the girls.

"But isn't it lovely for her to stay young like that?"

No, it isn't. It's lovely for mother to stay young; but not to stay young like that. A giggly, girlish maiden is a treat; but a giggly, girlish matron is usually a tramp. And her claim that she's "looking-after daughter" is merely a high powered alibi for her personal cutting-up.

Yet aren't there many fine mothers who are real companions to their daughters? And don't daughters need guidance by their mothers?

There are. And they do. But no mother who does a Sister Act with her daughter is fit to act as a guide. The very fact that she enjoys adolescent gaga as a steady diet is sufficient proof that she hasn't a spoonful of brains.

DESPITE MAMA'S PROTESTATIONS THAT THEY'RE "SIMPLY INSEPARABLE" NO DAUGHTER EVER WANTED HER MOTHER TO BE HER GIRL FRIEND.

There is a breach between the generations which no amount of beauty treatments or jazz can fill. Be she ever so beautiful or beloved, Mama is always an intruder at the feast of Youth.

Daughters do need advice and protection, and they will accept it if administered in a regular home by a real mother clothed in the dignity of her office. But they will not accept it from a synthetic playmate who insists on sharing lip sticks and pick-ups.

If a girl has to be watched all the time, in these or any other days, then what that girl needs is a keeper, not a SIDE KICK.

Way Toward Prosperity

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

AN extraordinary debate is taking place before the country as to what should be done to accelerate business recovery.

This is a heartening sign. Until a few months ago the reactionaries in the business and financial world were glibly advising that nothing be done. They were declaring that for the depression to be remedied it was only necessary to allow nature to take its course.

However, with the ranks of the unemployed steadily increasing and with the gross turnover of business continually sinking, it gradually became necessary for the conservatives to shift their position.

They now admit that some constructive action should be taken and the debate seems mainly about what that constructive action should be.

President Hoover and Secretary Mills have set themselves up as the mouthpieces for those who believe that the way to make the country confident is to make the financiers confident.

To many, however, it seems that the way to make business generally prosperous is to enlarge employment and buying power of the mass of the public.

The essential economic trouble has been a far reaching decline in the gross turnover of business and the remedy must be in the direction of increasing the aggregate volume of economic activity.

This statement is based on the fallacious assumption that businessmen and bankers have lost confidence for purely psychological reasons.

It overlooks the fact that confidence in the stocks and bonds of corporations, which were attractive on the basis of the 1929 gross turnover in business, has been shaken because the aggregate realized income of the country has fallen by $30,000,000,000, a decline of 36 per cent this year as compared with the peak, according to current estimates.

PUTTING political piffle aside, the choice lies between wholesale scaling down of public and private capitalization to bring it into balance with the existing low volume of national income, on the one hand, or seeking to increase the gross turnover of business, on the other.

When this has been done, it will no longer be necessary to consider setting up a bankers' pool to manipulate the security market. Nor will it be necessary for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to seek to peg prices through taking over frozen assets of private institutions.

When gross turnover increases, enlightened self-interest will cause those with a fragment of capital remaining to view with more confidence the general array of stocks and bonds of solvent companies.

By the same token, success in restoring economic health will raise even higher faith in bonds of the various units of government in the United States.

Investors know that an increase in the national income, from which taxes are taken, will raise the authentic value of all such outstanding obligations.

THERE are four chief avenues for heightening the gross volume of economic activity, and all should be simultaneously explored in a non-partisan spirit.

The first consists of providing more jobs by accelerating national, state and local public works, which should be financed by a federal bond issue. Arthur D. Gayer, Columbia economist, recently estimated that for every man directly engaged in public works two are employed indirectly behind the lines in supplying materials.

The second consists of adding to payrolls by private employers who desire to supply general merchandise to those unemployed who will be engaged in public works projects.

The third consists of increasing employment by private corporations which should be helped toward financing permanent improvements in plant and equipment, taking advantage of prevailing low costs.

The advance to the Pennsylvania Railroad by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for continuing job creating electrification projects is typical of what can be done in this direction.

The fourth consists of increased factory employment, resulting from effective farm relief enabling more than 8,000,000 workers on the farms, who are now virtually pauperized, to resume buying of factory products, including general merchandise and agricultural implements.

If these four means of relieving the industrial crisis are applied at the same time, there is every promise that the vicious spiral in business will be reversed.

To clear the air for such constructive rebuilding of American prosperity, Congress should forthwith get down to brass tacks, and stop the confusion and delay which has been giving the business world the jitters.

Then, after enacting legislation for unemployment and farm relief, Congress can heighten public confidence by adjourning and relieving the country of the paralyzing fears which grow out of uncertainty.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Does someone exert a strong influence on your life?

You may or you may not know that you are swayed by another's opinion.

You probably have an ideal, but does he or she represent a high type of man or woman?

Frequently this influencing type is one whose manners and morals are a little too free in latitude, but appeals to you because so free.

You say this person seems to have a good standing and yet has not as much conscience as you about how to have a good time.

You have "inhibitions" and you feel that you must get over them.

It may be that the one who has so much influence with you is of such a good family or such financial standing that you feel that what they can do is certainly quite all right for you.

If your reputation is not established, a misstep may cause you to be ostracized by those you wish for friends.

And then again the one tested who falls, never has the respect of the one who caused the fall.
